Environment Initiative

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Angeles District Associated General Contractors of California, the Environment Initiative hasn't died for its sponsors. And a businessman who helped send it to defeat said Wednesday he would try for an "industrialized" proposition.

Prop. 9, which proposed stringent ecological measures for the nation's most populous state, was turned down 2 to 1 in Tuesday's California primary election.

It was the apparent victim of a million-dollar counterattack led by business, labor and governmental leaders who said a "responsible" antipollution measure was needed.

One such avenue was proposed by the anti-Prop. 9 businessman.

"By God, the time has come to do something responsible to fight pollution. We in industry stood around too long inviting this sort of thing," said R. Jack Stoddard, chairman of the Los Angeles District Associated General Contractors of California. He campaigned hard against Prop. 9 around the state.

He said he wanted businessmen to draft a ballot measure "that would get the pollution job done in California in the realm of good business practice and present technology. It would be an industrialized Prop. 9."

He didn't elaborate very much except to say he didn't visualize the measure as having "the do-or-die" provisions of Prop. 9.

The Environment Initiative would have banned DDT and related long-lasting pesticides from California, removed lead from gasoline by July 1, 1976, outlawed offshore oil and gas drilling and put a five-year moratorium on construction of nuclear power plants in order to see if nuclear power was safe.

ABA Judicial Code

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Bar Association released Wednesday a final draft of its Code of Judicial Conduct which provides that judges must avoid appearances of impropriety and must refrain from business dealings which reflect on their impartiality.

The code will be presented to the ABA House of Delegates in August. If accepted by the delegates, the ABA will ask appropriate authorities in 50 states to adopt the canons as applicable to all state and federal judges.

The code is the first reformulation of the standards of ethics for judges since 1923.

An interim report and tentative draft of the canons were reviewed by 14,000 ABA members.

The guiding principle of the code is that "an independent and honorable judiciary is indispensable to justice in our society."

The code was developed by an ABA Special Committee on the Standards of Judicial Conduct. Roger J. Traynor, retired chief justice of the California Supreme Court, was chairman of the committee appointed in August 1969.

Main provisions of the code include:

- A judge in all his activities must avoid any appearance of impropriety.
- A judge's judicial duties have priority over any other activity and a judge must be unwavering by partisan interests,

Free Gold Market

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department Wednesday declared that the volatile and rumor-swayed free gold market is a prime reason why the world should phase out the precious metal in a new monetary system.

As the free price of gold skyrocketed, the Treasury described as false two reports that have been feeding the speculation. One is a rumor of a secret U.S.-Soviet deal to raise the price of gold drastically.

The other report, published in London, that the U.S. undersecretary for monetary affairs, Paul A. Volcker, plans to resign is without foundation, the Treasury said.

"The demonstrated sensitivity of the gold market to self-generating and self-serving rumors... simply provides further evidence of the need to build a monetary system not dependent on that commodity," the Treasury said.

It was a tacit recognition, however, that the free market price of gold has at least a psychological impact on the value of the dollar. The dollar weakened in trading overseas as the price of gold hit $65 an ounce.

The Nixon administration's statement was cleared by Volcker, chief architect of the International Currency Agreement reached last December.

Volcker wants to phase out the part that gold plays in the present monetary system. The value of the dollar, and other currencies as well, is pegged to gold's official price $38 an ounce.

HHH Opens Door A Little Humphrey-Wallace Slate?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, struggling to revive his battered White House bid, said there are circumstances under which he could accept Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama as a vice presidential running mate.

Sen. George McGovern, on the march toward the Democratic presidential nomination, said Wednesday he has a good chance to win first ballot victory, then embarked on a quest for more delegates and for party unity.

And Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, in the final irony of an incredible campaign season, was reported by Democratic sources to be considering dropping the last vestiges of the candidacy which once ranked him as a towering favorite.

These sources said if Muskie did drop out, it probably would be to endorse McGovern.

The South Dakota senator, who began his quest when nobody thought he had a chance, capped it early Wednesday with what he termed "a comfortable and decisive" victory over Humphrey in the California presidential primary.

With 99 per cent of the California precincts reported, these were the vote totals:

McGovern 1,527,485 votes or 45 per cent.

Humphrey 1,352,259 votes or 40 per cent.

Gov. Wallace was running third with 5 per cent of the vote, but many of his ballots had not yet been counted. His votes were write-ins, and it will be days before the exact total is known.

Six other entries on the California ballot trailed far behind.

That primary victory awarded McGovern 271 nominating votes, and he added more by defeating Wallace in New Mexico, where Humphrey ran third and got no delegates; by outdistancing the former vice president in New Jersey, and with an unopposed win in his own South Dakota.

Those primary verdicts pushed McGovern's total of first ballot nominating votes to 905½. It will take 1,509 to choose the Democratic nominee at the national convention in Miami Beach next month.

Wallace ranks second in delegate strength, with 326; Humphrey has 313½, and Muskie has 166. Another 474 Democratic delegates are uncommitted.

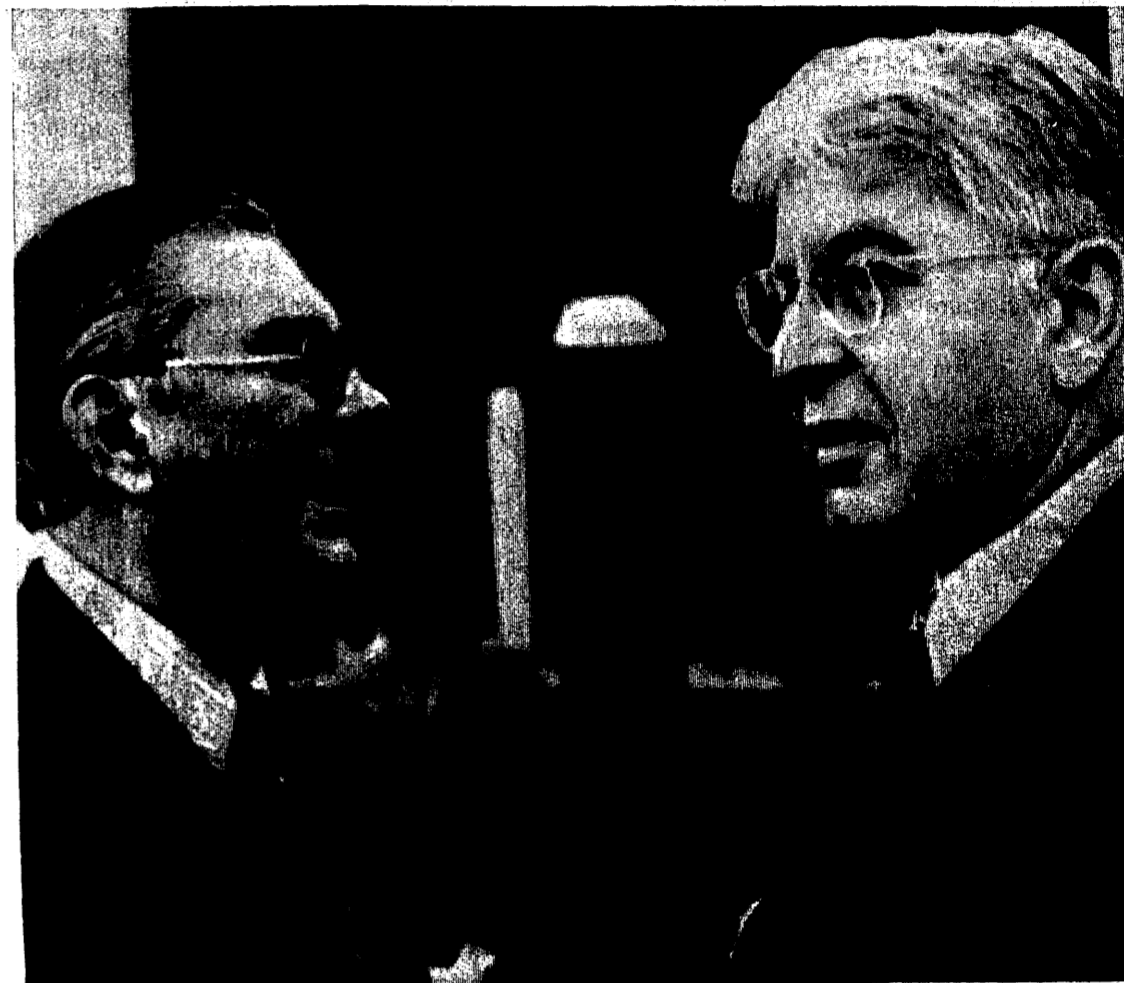

It remained to be seen whether McGovern's four-state sweep would impress uncommitted or wavering delegates enough to push them into his camp in the days ahead.

Muskie was in Washington, conferring with his advisers and talking by telephone with allies around the nation. He has repeatedly declared he remains a candidate, although he dropped from active primary competition April 27 after a succession of defeats.

It was learned reliably that Muskie was considering dropping out.

China Only Seconds From U.S. Targets

SAIGON (AP) — American jets battered a North Vietnamese railroad switchyard only 40 seconds flying time from China and bombed one of the North's biggest industrial power plants, U.S. sources said Wednesday.

Hanoi claimed five U.S. F4 Phantom jets have been shot down over the North since Saturday.

U.S. officials reported no losses. They said Air Force Phantoms struck the North Vietnamese rail center and a nearby bridge on Tuesday only 20 miles from the Chinese border. The attacks on the installations, southwest of Lang Son were the closest raids to China since the 1965-1968 bombing campaign.

Other Air Force Phantoms dropped laser-guided bombs on the Bac Giang thermal power plant, 25 miles northeast of Hanoi, for the second time since full-scale bombing resumed April 6.

In South Vietnam, newsman visiting Kontum found government troops in firm control of almost all the town.

Reporters noted heavy damage to most buildings in the vital central highlands provincial capital, which was under enemy attack for 13 days.

The commander of the 23rd Division, Brig. Gen. Ly Tong Ba, reported enemy units had withdrawn several miles to the north. American B52 bombers pounded the retreating troops Tuesday, U.S. officials said.

The battle to retake Kontum was "three days, three nights of fighting hand to hand, bunker to bunker," Ba said. Much of the fighting was carried on without air support because of bad weather, he added.

The general, who was recently promoted by President Nguyen Van Thieu, estimated the attackers lost 4,376 dead in ground action since May 14. He set his own losses at 368 killed and 1,577 wounded.

The 62-day stalemate at An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, continued. But field reports said about 800 paratroopers who were airlifted in linked up with other government units along the southern edge of the isolated provincial capital.

The U.S. Command in Saigon said 276 air strikes supporting South Vietnamese round troops were flown in the 24-hour period ending Wednesday morning.

Air action over North Vietnam Tuesday included more than 270 strikes ranging from the extreme north to the deep south.

In Cambodia, the high command reported fighting flared close to the Cambodian capital as well as in the northeast and southwest sections of the country.

The battle for Paing Kasey, 30 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, went into its seventh day as government troops trying to reach the beleaguered garrison clashed at three points with enemy forces.

Report Muskie Plans Pullout

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Edmund Muskie, one-time front-runner for the Democratic presidential nomination, is reported planning to announce his support for Sen. George McGovern, who is now in first place.

The New York Times said Muskie intimates were saying the Maine senator was leaning towards an endorsement of McGovern during a planned speech to the National Press Club in Washington Friday.

NBC said Muskie's "present plans are to announce his support" of the South Dakotan at the speech.

McGovern flew to Washington Wednesday and NBC said he is expected to confer there Thursday with Muskie.

However, Richard Stewart, a Muskie spokesman in Washington, said Wednesday night the senator was still deciding and conferring with advisers about whether to continue as a candidate or throw his support to McGovern. The spokesman said a decision would probably be announced during the scheduled appearance at the National Press Club.

Stewart added that McGovern telephoned Muskie from California Wednesday, but Stewart said he was not sure what was discussed. He said he knew nothing of a planned meeting between the two senators on Thursday.

Stewart said also that the subject of delegates already committed to Muskie also would be discussed at the Friday press club appearance.

Muskie has 166 committed delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

Tentatively Decide Debt Extension OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee agreed tentatively Wednesday on a bill extending the present $450-billion national debt ceiling through Oct. 31, assuring that Congress will again consider the issue this year.

If sustained, the decision means President Nixon's administration will be denied its request for a $15 billion increase, enough to take care of Treasury borrowing needs through February 1973.

Such a decision also would probably postpone effective efforts to attach tax-loophole-closing amendments to the debt-ceiling bill.

Committee members said it appeared more likely that this effort would be made when Congress again takes up the debt ceiling matter—as it would have to do before adjourning.

The tentative decisions are subject to review when the committee resumes sessions Thursday and final action is up to the House and Senate.

It appeared, however, that at least for the present Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., has succeeded in his intention to keep the borrowing limit and tax reform issues separate. He has introduced a bill to require a review of the whole tax code by bringing up most of the special provisions for repeal over a three-year period.

Agree To Look At School Financing Court Expands Police Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court says police may place arrested suspects in lineups without a lawyer on hand.

The 5-4 decision Wednesday in a Chicago case runs counter to a series of earlier rulings that expanded arrested persons' right to counsel.

As a result, a suspect must be offered a lawyer from the moment police start to question him. But he can't insist on one if police put him in a lineup or a showup for identification by witnesses.

The ruling was produced by the four Nixon appointees plus Justice Potter Stewart. Its logic was challenged by the dissenters.

In a flurry of actions on a busy day, the court agreed also to rule on the way all states except Hawaii finance their public schools. And the justices unanimously barred the states from indefinitely committing criminal suspects found incompetent to stand trial.

The Chicago case tested whether a suspect already arrested was entitled to a lawyer when a holdup victim came to the station house to view him at a lineup.

Stewart said the suspect, Thomas Kirby, did not have this right either under the Constitution or under a 1967 decision by the high court providing lawyers to suspects in lineups after they have been indicted.

The decision is likely to have a nationwide impact. In at least 13 states courts had ordered police not to place an arrested suspect in a lineup or show-up without a lawyer on hand. They are California, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Maryland, Michigan, Nevada, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Washington and Wisconsin.

Similarly, police have been barred by eight of the 11 federal appeals courts from the procedure approved by the high court in the Kirby case.

Stewart was backed by Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justices Harry A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr. and William H. Rehnquist. Dissenting were Justices William O. Douglas, William J. Brennan, Byron White and Thurgood Marshall.

Brennan said there is no good reason to supply lawyers at lineups after indictment and yet to deny them when the lineup is held at an earlier point, after arrest.

The school case, to be heard next winter, tests whether children in poor areas are being illegally shortchanged when the amount states spend on education is tied to the revenue raised from property taxes in the district.

A half-dozen courts across the country have cast doubt on the present financing system, including a three-judge panel in San Antonio, which found it discriminates against the poor. Thirty states backed Texas in an appeal, but six governors urged the high court to require the states to adopt another system.

The commitment ruling, delivered by Blackmun, came on an appeal by an Indiana retarded deaf mute who had been accused of stealing $5 in 1968 from two Marion County women.

When two psychiatrists determined the mute, Theon Jackson, was incompetent to stand trial he was placed in a mental institution. There he was to remain according to state law, until he became "sane."

Blackmun said this amounted to a life sentence. The justice said the state must either set him free or begin the regular procedures used to commit the feeble-minded and mentally ill.

Six other states appear to commit indefinitely a defendant found incompetent to stand trial. They are California, Connecticut, New Jersey, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Like Indiana, they eventually will have to change their ways. In other rulings, the court:

—Held a defendant who wishes to take the witness stand at his trial may not be required by law to be the first defense witness. The 5-4 decision sought to upset a practice in Tennessee and Kentucky in an appeal brought by Donald Brooks, a Chattanooga man convicted in 1969 of robbing a food store.

—Strengthened the Federal Communications Commission's authority to regulate cable television. The 5-4 decision upset the federal appeals court in St. Louis in a case involving the West Video Corp., which operates CATV systems in Missouri, New Mexico and Texas.

FCC in 1969 held no CATV system having 2,500 or more subscribers could relay programs unless it also originated shows.

—Upheld the Alabama law for damages for damage to property by sonic booms.

Delay In Saving Venice

The situation of Venice, Italy, provides a disturbing example of a well known phenomenon: the common failure of governments to respond quickly enough to conditions that demand prompt action. Venice is a particularly good instance of this because of the dramatic nature of its problem. It is, quite literally, sinking into the sea.

Apologists for the Italian government, which has been notably lethargic about taking the required action, can argue that Venice has been sinking into its famed lagoon for a long time—that, consequently, a little more delay will not hurt. The fact is that the decay of this unique city, which in itself is a treasure of civilization, has been proceeding at an accelerated pace. Unnecessary delay in undertaking the large-scale works needed to save the city is inexcusable.

The plight of Venice was brought to worldwide attention by the disastrous 1966 flood, in which heavy damage was done to splendid works of art dating back hundreds of years. That touched off an international fund-raising campaign under auspices of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO). This resulted in a 400-million-dollar "Save Venice" fund offered to Italy as a loan by an international consortium.

Unfortunately, bureaucratic bumbling and governmental changes have delayed approval of the enabling legislation whereby this money would be put to work. Meanwhile, the situation of Venice is deteriorating as it continues to sink and floods increase. What the Italian Parliament needs is an infusion of the sense of urgency which has prompted many throughout the world to contribute toward this effort to save Venice.

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst
Soviet diplomats have told U.S. State Department and White House officials at social functions that the Nixon policy of blockading Haiphong harbor and cutting off Hanoi's rail supplies will not succeed but will not affect relations between Moscow and Washington.

"It is your war and is on your conscience" was a typical Soviet theme during such contacts, State Department sources said.

Nearly a month after President Nixon ordered the activation of U.S. mines in North Vietnamese waters and the blowing up of its rail and bridge supply links to China and the Soviet Union, neither huge Communist nation has taken any step beyond verbal condemnation to break the blockade.

U.S. officials in Washington and Saigon now believe it is unlikely they will do so.

Fear May Be Reason

Such action by the Russians would be to nullify or delay indefinitely the accords worked out at the Moscow summit.

The fact that neither the Soviet Union nor China has taken any step in defense of their North Vietnamese ally that could lead to a dangerous confrontation with the United States is easier to see than to explain.

One possible explanation is that between the Soviet Union and China the fear of each other is stronger than the commitment of either to North Vietnam.

Each remains suspicious of possible secret agreements negotiated by the American president in his visits to the opposing capitals, Moscow and Peking, and each fears being caught in a nutcracker's operation in which the United States would join one against the other.

It seems possible the foregoing is a reaction Washington considered.

Since Russian ships were the chief means of ocean transport of Hanoi's war supplies, the danger of a confrontation with the Russians would seem greater than with China.

Peace Table Advantages

This in turn suggests the Russians knew in advance of Washington's blockade plans if the North Vietnamese did not break off their offensive against the south, and had time to consider it.

However advantageous the timing of their offensive looked to the North Vietnamese, it could do nothing but harm to U.S.-Soviet and U.S.-Chinese attempts at improved relations. The North Vietnamese may have looked upon this as a side benefit since it approved of neither.

There are indications the Russians may have suggested to the North Vietnamese they could make easier gains at the peace table than in an offensive expensive both in men and materials.

If so, the overture was rejected and could contribute to some coolness now.

State Department officials say evidence indicates that the mining operation in North Vietnam is 100 per cent effective. They say this has all but dried up North Vietnamese petroleum, which was the major military item that came by sea.

All heavy military equipment has come by rail through China for some time since Haiphong harbor cranes are not strong enough to lift heavy equipment.

Washington Nixon, Brezhnev Each Has His Bet

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA) — President Nixon is gambling the United States can stay three years ahead of Russia in the nuclear missile, submarine, bomber arms race.

He is betting, too, this country can so significantly upgrade its espionage techniques that American Soviet watchers can catch—early in their development—unexpected Soviet breakthroughs in such fields as laser, nuclear, space, undersea, radar and missile fuel and guidance technology.

Nixon adviser Henry Kissinger has another thesis, based on historical observation — that sometimes a momentum once lost can never be regained.

This is true in war, in national expansion, sometimes in economic and scientific growth. It is also true, Kissinger believes, in an arms race of the magnitude of this one.

Kissinger therefore believes that once the Soviet arms buildup momentum is halted, or slowed, even momentarily, and even if only in number, then important changes can take place in Russia. Counter pressures will build up.

Rival claimants, other than the military, will be able to more forcefully demand a larger share of the rubles, raw materials and technicians, pressures similar to those which have been building up in the United States these past few years.

The Soviet Union's Brezhnev is betting, of course, that this agreement will bring the technical aid which will enable the Soviet scientists to catch up with their American rivals, both in military technology and in the application of computers and other advanced techniques to the management of industry and to the development of the Soviet Union's vast underdeveloped areas.

Internationally, Brezhnev is betting that the underdeveloped countries will be so impressed by the numerical superiority allocated the Soviet Union in intercontinental missiles and ballistic missile submarines that these lands will be convinced that Russia is the world's number one military nation and most powerful country—and that communism is therefore the wave of the future.

This psychology of ultimate victory is a major strategy of the Kremlin in its drive for power and influence at home and abroad.

Soviet Communist theory holds that peoples usually will turn for aid and support to that nation which is the acknowledged strongest or which seems to be.

That is, the Russians, like the North Vietnamese and Chinese, are seeking a psychological victory, which in Marxist strategy is the basis for political victory. Nixon came to Moscow; Brezhnev didn't come to Washington. On paper Russia has more ICBMs or is allowed more, and is allowed more missile submarines.

We have seen this desire for psychological victory elsewhere of late. It is for this reason that North Vietnam thus far has not been satisfied with a chance to control South Vietnam. Hanoi wants to psychologically humiliate the United States and rub Nixon's nose in the mud and do the same for President Thieu's government in South Vietnam.

This is an essential part of victory. It would not prove that North Vietnam was stronger than the United States. But psychologically, by Marxist theory, it would advance the cause more than simple victory. It would make the people in the South more malleable and would establish the position of Hanoi in Southeast Asia and in the Communist and Third Worlds.

It is in the same mode as Mao Tse-tung's thesis that it is better to destroy one enemy division completely and totally, than to defeat 10 divisions. The psychological effect is greater.

In the next decade we shall be able to see whether the Kissinger theory or Brezhnev's is closer to reality.

Ann Landers: Therapist With Two Couches Needed

Dear Ann Landers: My ex-boyfriend is involved with my mother. The reason he is my ex is because he didn't treat me right and I told him to get lost.

My mother is in her late 30's and divorced. My ex-boyfriend is 19. When we were dating he used to tell Mom his troubles and she gave him advice. I thought when we broke up that would be the end of it but he still comes over to see Mom. I can't stand to be around them. I guess it was pretty dumb of me not to notice there was more between them than "motherly advice."

The guy has spent time in a mental hospital and I know he's a little off but I thought my mother had more sense than to fool around with a kid young enough to be her son. What should I do? It's beginning to get to me.—Wit's End

Dear Wit's: You can do nothing about your mother's company. But if you can't stand to be around them, there is something you can do about that. When the ex shows up, make yourself scarce.

What is really needed here is a therapist with two couches. Your mother could use some help, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I am an average middle-class woman with a nice husband. He has a small business, we own a modest home and have no big worries. Our only child is six years old and I am pretty certain we will not have more children. The question I am writing about may sound peculiar but I need an answer. If something should happen to both my husband and me, is there a law that says an orphaned child must be raised by a relative? I have one living parent and my husband has one also. Neither would be a suitable guardian for our child. My sisters have not done a very good job with their children and my husband's sister has four kids she didn't want and it shows.

Unfortunately we did not name godparents when our child was born. Is it too late to do so? Would godparents be the answer? Please give me some guidance. This thing has been preying on my mind for over a year.—Battle Creek

Dear B.C.: Godparents have no legal obligations. My advice is to make a choice, discuss it with whomever you've chosen and learn if they are willing to accept the responsibility. If so, make a will and state your wishes in writing. In the absence of a will, your child would probably be placed in the home of relatives.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 18 years of age and a recording artist with a trio. My career is a real groove so that's not the problem. What I am writing about is my boyfriend. Clyde and I have been going together for two years and I love him more than anybody in the whole world. The trouble is that Clyde is an Aries—very aggressive, jealous, and likes to boss me around. He has a hot temper and punches me whenever I say something he doesn't like. This interferes with my public appearances because stage make-up can cover the black and blue marks only so much.

I should tell you that I lie to him sometimes, not to hide anything but because I figure what he doesn't know can't hurt him, or me. When he finds out I haven't told him the truth he gets like wild. The problem is that I can't live WITH him and I can't live without him. Please don't tell me to find somebody else. Clyde is perfect except for the few little faults I've mentioned. What should I do?—Chickadee Doty

Dear Chick: You don't want advice. You've already told me what NOT to tell you. You just wanted to write a letter—and now that you've written it I hope you feel better.

Young Churchill's View

A memorable event and a memorable man were brought freshly to mind when Winston Churchill 2nd, grandson and namesake of Britain's famous World War II premier, spoke on the Westminster College campus at Fulton, Mo. There, 26 years ago, the elder Churchill delivered a solemn warning that an "iron curtain" was separating Eastern Europe from the rest of the world, and that behind it Russia was preparing for conquest.

This year's Churchill message was no less ominous. Asserting that "our defeats have outnumbered our victories," he asked who would have thought a quarter of a century ago "that the dominant influence in the Middle East today would be Soviet; that there would be more Red Army personnel in Egypt than there were British troops in all of India at the height of the British rule 100 years ago; that the Soviet fleet would be a force to reckon with in the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean; that Soviet diplomacy would rival that of the United States and Britain in the Indian subcontinent; that the Soviet Union would have reached a position of military parity with the United States?"

It is a disturbing catalogue, and in it there are echoes of the British prime minister's warning in the speech that brought Fulton to worldwide attention. The younger Churchill's thesis is that the Soviet Union remains at the center of the threat to world peace, just as his grandfather foretold. There is something in that; certainly this must figure in U.S. policy determinations.

We also must bear in mind, however, that there have been great changes since the first Winston Churchill made his "iron curtain" speech. Some measure of this change is found in the remarkably harmonious and productive outcome of the Moscow summit conference recently concluded. Young Churchill's misgivings about the Soviet Union must be taken into account, but not to the exclusion of the progress that has been made toward harmony between the superpowers.

New Old Nation: Sri Lanka

The British Commonwealth has lost one more member. The Indian Ocean island of Ceylon, which had been British since 1796, has withdrawn and will carry on as an independent state under the name of Sri Lanka.

The island has had various names in the past. The ancients called it Taprobang. It was conquered by invaders from India's Ganges Valley in the sixth century B.C., and became a kingdom. In early modern times it was held by the Portuguese and the Dutch before the British took over.

Sri Lanka's chief exports are tea, rice, coconuts and rubber. The island is well situated; lying only 20 miles off the southern tip of India, it is in a position to control trade in the Indian Ocean. The country has severe domestic problems, however, and may sometimes wish it had stuck with Britain.

Law For Today

Q. I recently was a salesman for an automobile dealer who advised his credit purchasers that they were paying only 6 per cent interest. However, "secret" papers kept by the treasurer showed customers were paying at least twice that figure. Isn't that illegal and to whom should I report this dealer?

A. It's illegal and such deceptive practices should be reported to the Consumer Fraud Division of the Attorney General's Office or to the local State's Attorney's Office. The credit buyer must be informed of the exact amount of interest on his loan and be provided with a copy of the installment contract, showing this interest rate. Illinois law also limits interest rates on new car loans to 8 per cent per year per $100 of loan and on used cars, for which loan rates vary up to $16 per year per $100 of loan.

Youthpower, Inc., a non-profit project backed locally by Manpower, Inc. and the Jacksonville Rotary club, has half the ingredients required for a successful youth summer employment program. It has an eager group of teen applicants, 81 as of Tuesday afternoon, only the second full day of operation.

Young people are flocking to the Youthpower office, located in the Jacksonville Area Chamber of Commerce building at 207 East Morgan St., to sign up for possible vacation work. They are coming not only from the city, but also surrounding towns, such as Aremville, Palmyra, Winchester and Woodson.

So far townspeople have phoned in job offers, ranging from those requiring typing skills to yard and housework. More than half of the job seekers are in the 13-15 age bracket. They must obtain work permits which are available at Jacksonville High School and require a parent's signature. They list janitorial work and babysitting as main job preferences, but are willing to tackle any work an employer might suggest.

The office is operating under the capable supervision of Karen Hendrickson, an 18-year-old Aremville girl who enjoys working with youth, and six part-time volunteers. Anyone may volunteer and may accept a paying job if qualified. Karen's goal is to have the youth handle complete operation of the placement center, dealing with applicants and employers. She would maintain her supervisory position.

Karen said more older teens are showing interest and filling out applications listing work experience and job preferences. A MacMurray College student told this reporter he had read about the placement center and having had little luck finding a summer job, decided to apply. The program, "originated to combat juvenile delinquency, reduce high school drop-outs and develop the potential of teens," will succeed only by means of city support. Teens and college students are trying to develop skills and responsibility, earn their own money and learn and the city should answer these needs.

The Youthpower office, which opened Saturday morning with an initial 46 applicants, is open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and from 8 a.m. to 12 noon each Saturday.

A private telephone line, assigned to the Youthpower, Inc. office, was installed Monday, June 5. Townspeople and business persons wishing to phone work offers for the young people, may call 243-1615.

Article Discloses Warning Against War Escalation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key foreign policy figure in the Johnson administration warned in 1964 that escalation of the Vietnam war would probably end in failure, according to a top-secret memo made public today.

George W. Ball, in a document Atlantic Monthly magazine says was read by President Johnson, cautioned in strong terms against sending large numbers of American troops to South Vietnam and widespread bombing of North Vietnam.

Writing of the likely outcome of a widened U.S. role in Vietnam, Ball said, "Once on the tiger's back, we cannot be sure of picking the place to dismount."

Ball's memo was written Oct. 5, 1964, just before Johnson's election as President and while pressure for responding to North Vietnamese and Viet Cong military successes was growing.

Citing the "feeble condition of the Saigon government," Ball, an undersecretary of state, wrote that an expanded air war designed to cut back North Vietnamese support of the Viet Cong would be of little help in defeating an insurgency in the South.

"There is little evidence to suggest that the South Vietnamese would have their hearts lifted merely by watching the North Vietnamese suffer a sustained aerial bombardment," he said. "Most have families or at least friends in the North."

"Nor can we rule out the possibility that Hanoi would undertake an overt invasion," Ball wrote. "By directly bombing North Vietnam, we would have removed the political inhibition against overt use of force."

Once the commitment of an expanded air war was made, Ball said, the sending of large numbers of American ground troops to South Vietnam was inevitable.

Even substantially increased infiltration from North Vietnam would require substantial American ground units to defend our bases from attacks by the North."

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ted Simmons' two-run double highlighted a three-run rally in the eighth inning, carrying the St. Louis Cardinals to a 5-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants Tuesday night.

Ted Sizemore walked with one out in the eighth off Steve Stone, 3-5, and Matty Alou singled. Both runners advanced on Joe Torre's grounder and Simmons bounced a ground-rule double over the right field screen. Bernie Carbo followed with a run-scoring single, chasing Stone.

The Giants scored their last run in the ninth on Ken Henderson's leadoff homer.

The Cardinals opened the scoring in the third with an unearned run and Torre belted his sixth homer in the sixth.

Dave Rader's leadoff double, Stone's sacrifice and Chris Speier's groundout scored the first run off Rick Wise, 5-5, in the third. Rookie Garry Maddox cracked his third homer of the season for a 2-2 tie in the seventh.

Scout Troop 107 Visits Alabama Space Center

Members of Boy Scout Troop 107, Grace United Methodist church, visited the world's largest space exhibit during a stop at Huntsville, Alabama, enroute to the State of Florida. The group includes 37 boys and eight adults.

The Alabama Space and Rocket Center is designed to let the visitor be the astronaut. The Center contains many educational exhibits that permit involvement in rocketry and space travel.

The Scouts are under leadership of Scoutmaster Joe Grojean. The group viewed space ships used by astronauts, saw a full-size moon rocket close-up and walked on a simulated moon crater. They snacked on space food, fired a rocket engine, operated a lunar landing computer, and viewed a futuristic space station mock-up.

The Alabama Center features the world's largest collection of rockets, missiles and space vehicles. The Center is five miles west of Huntsville, on highway 20, and open to the public daily.

High Court Will Review School Financing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court agreed today to examine one of the most pressing issues in American public education — whether a state may constitutionally ignore tax differences between rich and poor districts in financing their schools.

The Court will review a ruling by a special three-judge federal court in San Antonio, which invalidated Texas' method of school financing and gave the legislature two years to devise a better one. The case will be heard next fall or winter and decided by written opinion.

At the same time, the Court denied a hearing to four banks and the Securities Industry Association which wanted to become parties to the suit because of their role as underwriters of school district bonds.

The Texas case and a similar one in California already have had nationwide impact among educators and lawmakers because of their revolutionizing effect on states' taxing systems. Almost all states lean heavily on local property taxes to finance schools.

WILLIAMS FINDS ACTING EXPERIENCE PRETTY EXCITING

NEW YORK (AP) — "I have always wanted to be there in front of the audience," said Tennessee Williams. "It was pretty exciting, but I can't say I would do it again."

Williams made his first appearance as an actor Tuesday night after nearly three decades as one of America's premier playwrights. He played a role in one of his own plays, appearing unannounced to replace an actor making a movie.

Williams played the role of Doc in "Small Craft Warnings," which opened to mixed reviews this spring at an off-Broadway theater.

Williams, 61, a small, stocky man from Columbus, Miss., whose plays have won two Pulitzer Prizes, came back on stage after the final curtain to talk with the audience. As any fledgling actor, he was concerned about his performance.

Byre's Single In 15th Inning Drops Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Byre lashed a tie-breaking single in the 15th inning Tuesday night to send the Minnesota Twins to a 5-4 victory over Baltimore, extending the Orioles' losing string to five games.

Rod Carew led off the 15th with a single to left off Ralph Scott, 0-1, Baltimore's sixth pitcher.

After winning reliever Ray Corbin, 2-0, struck out attempting to bunt, Bob Darwin drew a walk and Byre followed with his single to left that sent the skidding Orioles down to their seventh loss in eight games.

Starter Jim Palmer entered the ninth inning with a six-hitter and a three-run lead. But Byre's single, Eric Soderholm's fifth home run and singles by Rick Dempsey, Steve Braun and Danny Thompson tied it before Roric Harrison, the fourth pitcher of the inning, got Harmon Killebrew to hit into a rally-killing double play.

Minnesota scored in the third on singles by starting pitcher Jim Kaat and Braun and Thompson's grounder, but the Orioles got three in the fourth on singles by Dave Johnson, Paul Blair, Bobby Grich and Brooks Robinson and Andy Etchebarren's sacrifice fly.

They made it 4-1 in the seventh when Mark Belanger singled, stole two bases and scored on Johnson's grounder. Min 001 000 003 000 001 — 5 16 1

On The House

By ANDY LANG

If you intend to replace a broken window pane, you can skip the toughest part of the job by having the new glass cut to size—or almost to size.

Measure the length and width of the channel into which the glass sets and deduct 1-16th of an inch from each dimension. Having the glass cut exactly to size, so that it fits tightly into place, can cause cracking or breaking at a later time if the opening warps or shrinks.

Wear work gloves when removing the old glass from the window. Gently take out all the broken pieces that will come out fairly easy without tugging. The remainder will come loose when the old putty is removed. Use a heated soldering iron to soften any stubborn putty.

The tiny glazier's points you'll find imbedded in the wood must also be removed. This can be done with pliers or a flip-motion with the blade of a screwdriver. These points can be used again although it may be preferable to get a small package of one of the new types that are a bit easier to install.

New putty or glazing compound can be prevented from drying out for a long period of time by coating the pane channel with linseed oil or paint before putting the new glass into place. Reinstall the glazier's points, then roll a piece of putty or compound between the palms of your hands until it is about the thickness of an ordinary pencil. Place the strip or strips in place on the outside where the pane fits into the channel. Use a putty knife to slant the material so that rain will roll off it. While the putty will help to keep the pane in place, that job is actually that of the glazier's points, so be sure they are holding securely before applying the putty.

Should you have a quantity of glass around and would like to try your hand at cutting it, you will find that it takes awhile to get the hang of it. Hold the glass cutter almost vertically as you draw it along the glass. Keep the wheel of the cutter lubricated with household oil. Sometimes you will appear to have made a clean cut, only to spoil the job when you try to break off the waste material. Wear gloves while doing this. Hold the pane on either side of the cut and flip your hands downward. Place the glass on a flat surface with the line of the cut at the edge and break off the scrap with a downward movement of one hand. If, the first time you try it, you make the cut cleanly and break off the excess without any trouble, you're some kind of genius.

(Squeaky floors and stairs, balky windows and doors, and concrete and brick repairs are among the 35 subjects discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1 to this newspaper in care of Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Tiny Tribe Seeks Everglades Peace

Editor's Note — It was the last place they could go, the watery wilderness of the Everglades, the civilization of another world slowly intruding on them and the swampland where they have lived at peace with nature.

By ERIC SHARP
Associated Press Writer
JIMMY TIGER'S VILLAGE, Fla. (AP) — In 1924, a 4-year-old Miccosukee Indian boy named Buffalo Tiger crouched in a clump of bushes in the Everglades and got his first look at white men.

They were hunters who had driven out from Miami 40 miles to the east and the frightened child couldn't understand why the whites were shooting the lovely but inedible birds that soared above the vast Sea of Grass.

In 1972, a 52-year-old man named Buffalo Tiger is chairman of the Miccosukee tribe, trying to lead his people along a path that will let them preserve their way of life despite changes wrought by white men like those hunters he saw as a boy.

"Those were the best times, happy times, but we didn't know it then," Buffalo Tiger says of his childhood. "We couldn't see what was coming. Now, we're trying to make adjustments that will let us take what we need from the white men without destroying our culture, the old way of life."

Ever since they moved into the Everglades more than 100 years ago, the Miccosukee have been a hunting people. But whites have slaughtered the deer, alligators, birds and other game in such numbers that stringent hunting regulations have been imposed to keep the animals from being wiped from the face of the earth.

"Now, we have to obey the state hunting regulations for deer and whatever game is left, and we're not allowed to hunt alligators at all," Buffalo Tiger says. "The white man kills off most of the game by killing the animals and draining the swamps. Then he says, 'You Indians can't hunt any more.' When they took our hunting away, they made us slaves to jobs we had to take to support our families."

But Buffalo Tiger, who was named recently by Gov. Reubin Askew to head the state Indian Affairs Council, says he thinks the time has arrived when politicians and the public will help the Miccosukee in their drive to keep their identity from being submerged in the immense white society that surrounds them.

At the beginning of the 19th century, the Miccosukee lived in North Florida and had their first experiences with whites when land-hungry settlers pushed into the rich farming area from Georgia and Alabama.

Miccosukee and Seminole tribesmen fought for their lands in a series of devastating battles over the next 40 years. They ended with most of the Indians dead or shipped off to reservations in Oklahoma.

But when the Seminoles agreed to move to reservations, the Miccosukee refused and pulled back into the trackless, watery world of the Everglades where the whites had no reason or inclination to follow. For many years the few survivors lived in peace, avoiding contact with white men.

But following World War II, real estate developers began to eye the rich marshlands as potential building sites.

Although development of the Everglades has been slow, Dade County tried two years ago to build a huge jetport near the village owned by Buffalo Tiger's brother, Jimmy.

The Indians opposed the airport because they feared the commercial development that would spring up around it, and the plan was defeated after conservationists marshalled strong public opposition.

One small voice that made up the vast outcry belonged to another of Buffalo Tiger's brothers, Tommy, whom Buffalo Tiger calls "a real Indian."

Tommy is a quiet man who has little to do with whites. He and his wife live on a small, tree-studded island in the Everglades eight miles from the nearest road and approachable only by airboat for most of the year.

Tommy lives completely in the old way, sleeping on a wooden platform under an open-sided, thatch-roofed hut called a chickee. There's one chickee to eat in, another to cook in and a third to sleep in. He raises a few vegetables, fishes for bass, and gets what little cash he needs by hunting frogs to sell to Miami restaurants.

The Miccosukee point out that they never moved onto a reservation, and they correct anyone who mistakenly calls them Seminoles. "Most of the Seminoles are Creeks," Buffalo Tiger says. "We're a different people all together. We even speak a different language."

The Miccosukee today number about 500, most of whom live along U.S. 41, a narrow road built on a causeway that slices across South Florida from the Atlantic Ocean to the Gulf of Mexico.

In 1962, they incorporated to win official recognition from the government as a tribe separate from the Seminoles, most of whom live on reservations near Dania on the East Coast, in the Big Cypress Swamp to the northwest and in other areas of the state out of the Everglades.

The Miccosukee know the importance their language has in preserving their independence, and children who attend elementary classes in the Indian

In order to win a presidential election, the candidate must receive the constitutionally required majority of 270 electoral votes.

Tells Of Father

By DONALD THORNTON
NEW YORK (UPI)—When Hendrik Willem Van Loon's book, "The Story of Mankind," was published in 1922 it was an overnight best-seller and became his passport to international fame and fortune.

By the 1930s his magnetic personality had turned him into a living legend. "The genius of the man is that he made you feel he was telling you something very personal," said his son and biographer, Gerard Willem Van Loon. "He got people interested in things they would never have been interested in."

His "story" books were historic in nature and "brought things down to a simple level. He opened new worlds for people in his books, such as "The Story of Art" and "The Story of Geography." Some would never have looked into these subjects but were tricked into it by his style of writing," his son said.

Van Loon, who died in 1944, lavished his books and correspondence with Rembrandt-like drawings, which became as famous as his writings. "His drawing was kind of a shorthand which he developed," his son said. "They were so well known he could sign a check with a drawing of an

The elephant sketch was Van Loon's symbol, according to his son, "because he saw himself as an elephant." But no matter how popular and famous Van Loon was, public acclaim and private despair went hand in hand during his life. He suffered fits of melancholia and suicidal depressions, which his son details in his biography, "The Story of Hendrik Willem Van Loon."

"He had an ego as big as all outdoors," the younger Van Loon said "and his family suffered because of it." His father's volatile personality, he added, created an uncertain climate which ruined the three marriages, and any family life, he had. In his book, which reads like a novel and not a biography, Van Loon's son, a playwright and theater critic based in New York, above all, I was the only person who knew 'The Story of Hendrik Willem Van Loon' in its entirety and could write it."

The first woman to serve in Canada's Parliament was Agnes Campbell Macphail, who was elected to the House of Commons in 1921 as a representative of the United Farmers of Ontario.

Watches Monkeys

By MARTIN KRUMING
Associated Press Writer

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—There are bird watchers, girl watchers, weight watchers and China watchers. Jim Loy is a monkey watcher.

To do so he gets up before dawn, drives 20 minutes to the small fishing village of La Parguera on Puerto Rico's west coast and takes a five minute motor boat ride to a place called "monkey island."

Wearing a Navy blue baseball cap, an Army jungle fatigue jacket and hiking boots, he gathers the only equipment needed to watch the furry creatures—a pair of binoculars, pad and pencil.

Then from shortly after sunrise—before the temperatures reach into the 90s—until afternoon, the tall, anthropologist patiently watches monkeys.

"It takes a lot of patience. After a thorough day with the monkeys I feel much older," says Loy, 28, who works for the Caribbean Primate Research Center based near San Juan and affiliated with the University of Puerto Rico.

There are about 350 monkeys of three different varieties on the island. All but 13 are the rhesus type from India.

from Africa and green monkeys on Barro Colorado Island, a nearby St. Kitts whose relatives date back to the African slave trade in the 1700s.

Loy, a native of Knoxville, Tenn., is scientist in charge of the La Parguera colony.

"Monkey island" is two islands—Cueva and Guayacan—stretching over 180 acres of mangrove swamp, tall bush grass and cactus.

La Parguera first was stocked with monkeys (there are no monkeys on Puerto Rico) 11 years ago when a load of rhesus was shipped from India.

Funded by a grant from the National Institute of Disease and Stroke in Bethesda, Md., the primate center is almost two years old. In addition to La Parguera, the center also includes Cayo Santiago, another "monkey island" of some 37 acres off Puerto Rico's eastern shore. It was started in 1938.

But no records have been kept, he says, and all they have is a bunch of monkeys with no background.

Accurate records for each monkey are kept at La Parguera including sex, birth and death rates, parents and grandparents and social ranking. For this reason each is tattooed with a black dye.

Rhesus monkeys were chosen for the colony because "the animals are free of tuberculosis and many virus diseases including measles," says Conaway.

No studies are being conducted regarding mental illness, cancer or other diseases but there are a number of experiments under way.

monkey troops to defective infants who have had their vision impaired, acts of aggression during the mating season and what factors regulate the mating season.

Much of the data compiled at La Parguera and Cayo Santiago has been published in scientific journals. However, information on the recent experiments is not yet conclusive.

There are two other monkey watchers on La Parguera. One is Loy's wife, Kent, a teacher who observes the patas and green monkeys.

The other is Lee Drickamer, 25, a zoologist from Illinois working on a grant from the North Carolina Foundation of Mental Health Research.

Since monkeys are such close biological relatives to man, the results of experiments now under way have human implica-

Men's Underwear Concept Changing

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI)—The funny thing about men's underwear is how it's bought. Some of the best dressed men in the country (or their wives) go into a department store and buy the cheapest underwear they can find, invariably white.

For years men have replenished their underwear only because their old underwear was wearing out. If any price rise was indicated, men hesitated to buy and their wives flatly refused, preferring to go elsewhere and find something cheaper.

That concept is changing, though not much. But in recent years there has been an influx of European styles, some so brief as to be almost nonexistent, and kids squeezed into tight jeans snapped them up. With the new brevity came color and bright patterns.

who prefer boxer shorts, sharply tapered boxers which also will fit into blue jeans.

The very newest trend is for T-shirts and A-shirts or athletic singlets which can be worn as sports shirts. Some of the T-shirts have pockets and come in all colors and trims and some are printed in outrageous colors or decorated in the current crayon drawing fad.

There is also something totally new this year—what John Weitz calls his "Tops 'N Bottoms." It is a one-piece outfit. The top is in stretch nylon with a zipper that zips up into a turtle neck sportshirt or can be left open. The bottom has a cotton crotch with snaps. Mandate does a similar Toro Shirt with long sleeves, a zipper placket for a sports shirt effect, and in many colors.

And for the younger and vote-conscious crowds—the 18-year-olds who are getting to vote in this presidential election year for the first time Diener Industries has patriotic tops and bottoms in red, white and blue, heavily printed with the word "Vote." They also have His and Hers outfit.

Jockey's Line
Jockey Men's Wear, Inc., which pioneered fashion underwear back in 1964, has perhaps the widest range of fashion underwear, ranging from their extremely brief skants for the jeans wearers to colorful things for the older man—some of which could be worn at the beach.

Now there are A-tops and briefs in bright stripes, bikinis in wild jungle prints or in two tones or in pastels with matching tops. And A-shirts which have scooped-out necks to be worn as part of a "layered look" over a sports shirt. T-shirts with mock turtle necks—T-shirts with pockets, printed shorts, knitted argyles.

Munsingwear, another giant of the industry, offers such things as tank tops in a wide variety of colors, T-shirts and matching shorts in overall floral prints—which can also double as sports wear. And if you are just tired of plain skivvies there are skivvies in vivid stripes.

Some of the more daring things are from IFT International which imports them from Europe and whose line includes such things as fishnet briefs with a matching top that has a laced-up front for bare chested looking sports wear.

And such specialty shops as the Village Squire in New York and Lew Magram of California come out with things ranging from mini-mini briefs through fishnet weaves, Puccelli Prints and criss-cross designs which permits slimpler briefs than would be thought possible.

GIVE GALA CONCERT
HOLMDEL, N.J. (AP)—The 50th anniversary of the New Jersey Symphony will feature two famous married couples in a gala benefit concert June 18 at Garden State Arts Center here.

Henry Lewis, music director of the symphony whose main base is in Newark, will conduct Tchaikovsky's "Symphony No. 5."

Richard Boyne will conduct arias and duets from operas of the bel canto period. The two singers will be soprano Joan Sutherland, who is married to Bonyne, and mezzo-soprano Marilyn Horne, who is married to Lewis.

Boxes are going for $1,000 with single tickets at $15, $25 and $50.

'VINCENT' IS VAN GOGH
NEW YORK (AP)—"Vincent," Don McLean's current hit single record, is about Vincent Van Gogh.

Some disc jockeys playing the song on their radio stations have had questions about who Vincent was and passed the queries on to McLean. McLean didn't intend the identity to be a mystery. "Starry, Starry Night," mentioned in the song, is the title of a Van Gogh painting and there are five or six references to other Van Gogh paintings in the song. The music swirls, also, in musical approximation of van Gogh's painting style.

McLean was struck by Van Gogh as a person who tried to communicate during his lifetime and failed.

ADVISES JAZZ FESTIVAL
WASHINGTON (AP)—John Lewis, pianist and musical director of the Modern Jazz Quartet, has been appointed music adviser for the 1972 American College Jazz Festival, scheduled for Kennedy Center.

The festival, in its third year, is presented this year by the center and the National Association of Jazz Educators. Nearly 200 colleges have been represented at eight regional festivals held to select the bands to perform at the national festival.

Lewis, who has led the Modern Jazz Quartet for 20 years, also is on the faculty of the North Carolina School for the Performing Arts and is musical director for the Montreux Jazz Festival.

Lady Dottie Flourishes In Academic Atmosphere

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — My two first year at college, neither higher education. Each has gained something from the experience, but on the

Tracy Ann, who will be 19 this month. They were both students at Windham, a small coed college idyllically situated in the green hills of Putney, Vt. To a middle-aged adult such plished woman of the world, completely at home in drawing room, field or forest. Roaming the Vermont woodlands has given her a new confidence in herself. She is thin and beautiful and imperious—and somewhat annoyed at being forced to return to the tame indoor city life of her youth.

"I guess that Lady Dottie got more out of college than I did," Tracy said. "She's hardly afraid of anything anymore. She's popular with the students, she has fought and whipped two dogs, and made friends with two more. She likes it up there."

But Lady Dottie didn't go to hell as a result of the freedoms that modern colleges now allow. She never learned to smoke a reefer, and she turned an ever deaf ear to the mid-night invitations of Vermont's moon-influenced amorous tomcats. She remains as chaste as the day she left the veterinarian's hospital years ago, and that's about as chaste as a ca can get.

As to my other teen-ger—Tracy Ann—college has had a rather mixed impact at far.

"I didn't learn as much from books as I did from the people there," she said. "The first semester I found it difficult to get adjusted to life in a dormitory. Whenever you wanted to study or just be alone, there were always a dozen people in your room."

Things got better the second semester, but Tracy's grades were more dismal than heartening. Now, like thousands of other restless students, her age, she says she would like to take a year off before going back to college "so I can find myself."

"I'd like either just to roam around Europe or get a day job here and take acting lessons at night. I still don't know whether I want to be a veterinarian or an actress."

She is lucky to have a summer mailroom job that pays her $96 a week, $19 more than her father earned as a night city editor in New York in 1942. "Don't try to fly before you have learned how to walk well," I caution her. The thought of her becoming a dropout chills my heart.

If Papa has his way—but he rarely does—come September both my teen-agers will go back to college, paw in hand, hand in paw.

Cooling it

NEW YORK (UPI)—During the late 19th century, atomized moisturizing of air in cotton mills led to the invention of the "air washer" in 1897 and to Willis H. Carrier's device for automatically cooling air in 1906.

By 1970, 36.7 per cent of all households in the United States were kept cool by some 23 million automatic air conditioning units.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

AP Newsfeatures
Q. — I bought an unfinished bureau a couple of years ago but never got around to putting a finish on it. I'd like to do so now, but would like to clean the wood first, since it has a slightly dirty appearance. The wood is made of white pine.
A. — Wipe the surface thoroughly with a cloth saturated in turpentine. Change the cloth each time it becomes soiled.

Q. — We have our eyes on a house in a new development. It suits us well, but it has no gutters around the roof eaves. I always believed that the law called for gutters on a house to take care of the rain. The building company representative says this isn't so. He says it is perfectly legal, but he seems a little vague about details. Can you advise us?
A. — Some communities permit houses to be built without gutters and downspouts, providing that the roof overhang meets certain requirements regarding size. It is unlikely that any developer would attempt to violate the law in this respect because it would jeopardize his chances of getting the necessary certificates of occupancy. However, your local town hall will advise you whether gutters and downspouts are required.

Actually, the important thing is whether the land around the house is graded so that rain flows away from it when it hits the ground. If it does, you may get by without gutters. If it doesn't, even gutters may not be sufficient. In the latter case, the downspouts would have to be connected to drain tiles to carry roof water away from the house.

Q. — I painted our concrete basement floor two years ago with latex paint. It is still in perfect condition with no peeling or loosening paint anywhere. I now want to put down resilient tile, as we are going to make a recreation room. Can the tile be applied right over the paint or must the paint first be removed?
A. — If the paint is still solidly attached, as you say, you can place the tile right over it. But be sure you use a floor tile which can be used over concrete below grade. Talk it over with your dealer.

Q. — About a year ago, you advised someone how to tell whether a soiled area is mildew or just dirt. The test has escaped me. Can you refresh my memory? Also, if it is mildew, how can it be removed?
A. — When a mildewed area is saturated with ordinary household bleach, it will turn white in a few minutes. Many regular household cleaners are basically trisodium phosphate, which is effective against mildew. A standard solution for the removal of mildew is three ounces of trisodium phosphate, one quart of household bleach, one ounce of a powdered detergent and three quarts of lukewarm water.

Istanbul Residents Plugging Selves In

By RODNEY FRIDER
ISTANBUL (AP) — Tired of paying high electricity bills? Why not throw a cable on a power line and plug yourself in? Still waiting for water to be connected to your new house? How about buying some pipe and just connecting it up to the municipal supply?

Slum-dwellers in Istanbul are doing both, and revelling in free water, electricity and gas. The harassed municipal authorities hand out fines and even jail sentences, but the piracy goes on.

In the outer suburb of Okmeydan, much of which is not connected to the electricity network, the sky is crowded with cables at crazy angles, leading to the main power line which traverses the area. Householders have simply lassoed the line with their own cables. It's a dangerous business, as the cables they use are not strong enough to take the main current and fused wires are common. Shocks and even fatal electrocutions occur. Even if the system works there is still the possibility of punishment from the authorities, who can hand out six month jail terms for habitual offenders.

Officials, however, are reportedly wary about interfering after an attack recently on three electricity board inspectors, who were injured in a clash with householders. The houses are still lit and heated by electricity.

Stealing water is a bit more complicated, but less dangerous. About 10 per cent of Istanbul's water supply is drained off by water pirates, officials say. They either fiddle with the meter or dig their own pipes. In the city pipe-digging is apt to create attention, but it happens. In the outer suburbs it's much easier: a businessman building a new factory often puts in his own pipe and an extra hole here or there goes unnoticed as the pipes are connected to the mains.

Gas is easy. Most Istanbul apartment houses have all the requisite piping for the municipal gas supply. The gas department merely supplies a meter when a householder asks for gas to be connected. This can take months, and to save the bother it's easy enough to unscrew the stopper and plug your gas stove straight in.

The water department makes periodic checks with mine-detectors in a search for pipes which shouldn't be where they are. The electricity department also is going on the offensive and plans to insulate overhead power lines in areas where electricity pirates are at work. "They will be very hard to steal power from," said Istanbul Electricity Department Director Saffet Gurtav. "Or at least we think they will be."

For homeowners, some form of property insurance is almost as automatic as paying taxes. Apartment people should have the same protection.

If one totals up the costs of the things owned, it's amazing how quickly several thousand dollars worth of possessions can be accumulated—things that would be hard to replace in the wake of a fire or a burglary.

Landlords are not necessarily responsible for these kinds of things. They're usually liable only for the building itself, the grounds, and sometimes for appliances or equipment included in the rental. The same is usually true with cooperatives or condominiums, though owners may have a voice in the extent of coverage.

As a rule, tenants are responsible for any loss or damage to personal possessions, and for injury to guests.

That's why "Tenant's Form" insurance is available. It's essentially a "homeowner-type" policy for apartment people and it covers household contents and personal property together with personal liability.

A tenant's policy is broken down into two sections: property and liability. Insurance can be bought in forms other than the tenant package.

Some buildings or areas don't offer tenant policies. To equal protection offered by a tenant's package, one would need three separate policies—personal property, liability, and theft.

The amount of protection needed is strictly individual. For property coverage, the answer depends on how much one has to lose and how much one is willing to supplement insurance payments in replacing things. Once a decision is made to buy a policy, the relative cost of several thousand dollars more coverage is small.

A good way to begin assessing needs for property coverage is to inventory belongings. It's also helpful, if not essential, in making claims and getting a prompt settlement for loss or damage. Consider photographing rooms, closets and specific items to file with the inventory. Forms for making a record of personal property should be available from one's insurance agent.

Liability coverage is not as easy to figure, since there is no way to predict that claims or lawsuits may be filed against the tenant. Protection depends on how much one has to lose in assets, salary and other income.

BAND CONTEST IN VIENNA

VIENNA (AP) — More than 8,000 young musicians will meet for the International Youth Band Festival from July 10-17 in Vienna. The largest number of groups, 27, will come from the United States.

There also will be high school ensembles from Israel, Czechoslovakia, Rumania, Denmark, Luxembourg, Sweden, Belgium and West Germany.

Competition will be before a panel of international judges. On July 15, all the bands will unite for a mammoth jam-boree. Following the festival, many of the bands will tour Austria before returning to home.

Computer Used To Localize Foreign Body Lodged In Eye

Science Today
By JOHN C. BRADEN

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI)—Two Kansas doctors recently developed a way to quickly and accurately determine the location of a foreign object lodged in the eye, by using a computer.

Dr. Thomas J. Cusack, radiologist at Kansas University Medical Center here, said the method is a simplification of a technique developed by William Sweet in 1898. Sweet's method uses X-ray pictures of the eye, taken from several different angles. It requires sophisticated mathematics, geometry and graphing to locate the object in a patient's eye by triangulation.

The use of the computer in the Kansas method eliminates the figuring formerly done by the radiologist. The result is a much faster, more accurate localization of the foreign body.

Much Time Lost
Of such eye cases, Cusack said, "Chances are that a radiologist would do this type of thing about once a year." Besides the radiologist's being out of practice, he said, there is much time lost in searching for the seldom-used graph paper and instruction sheets used in Sweet's method.

He said the formerly cumbersome figuring is done more quickly and accurately by computer.

He added, "The computer will not forget how to do it. The possibility of misinterpreting the instructions or drawing the lines wrong is eliminated."

Cusack said he first thought of the project about 15 months ago while working on a case using Sweet's localization.

"I was on call one night after I first started my residency when this type of case came in," he said. "First it was necessary to find the instructions and graph paper and then to draw it up. I remember myself and a surgeon reading those directions."

Cusack said it occurred to him that since the process is mostly mathematical the computer could probably do it. "It just struck me that night, so I decided to give it a try."

Enlists Aid of Expert
The radiologist enlisted the aid of Dr. William F. Herrin, a computer expert at the hospital, to help program Sweet's localization for a computer.

"Dr. Herrin was very patient with me," Cusack said. "I'm sure he could have done it much faster, but he let me work with it."

Cusack said the computer program is not difficult and can be used on almost any computer. Since publication in May of a report on the technique, the Kansas team has received a half-dozen requests from other hospitals for copies of the computer program.

Once a computer is programmed for the method, it can even instruct the radiologist how to make the necessary measurements on the X-ray pictures. The result of the measurements are fed into the machine which calculates where the foreign body is in the eye.

Three beautiful hybrid tea roses have moved into the 1973 winner's circle.

The choices announced by All-America Rose Selections are:

Electron — a sparkling rose-pink, which has won many European awards.

Gypsy — a bright orange-red whose ancestors include six previous All-America winners.

Medallion — light apricot-pink that flowers abundantly.

Electron has won awards in Great Britain, Holland, Spain, Scandinavia, Germany, Austria and Belgium. It has pointed buds that open to large, high-centered blooms with long-lasting fragrance that won for it the "best perfume" award at Roelux, Belgium.

It is vigorous and bushy. The brilliant pink coloring stays with it. The parents are Paddy McGredy and Prima Ballerina and it was bred in Ireland by Sam McGredy IV.

Gypsy has long, sturdy stems to hold up urn-shape buds that become double blooms. The attractive roses have large petals that retain their brilliant hue. The plant is broad, upright and of medium height, with deep green leaves. The flowers have a spicy fragrance.

Medallion is distinctive in its ability to produce numerous blooms. The buds are shapely, some several inches long. The buds open into big six-to-seven-inch blooms with 35 or so broad petals of apricot pink, with a mild fruity fragrance. As many as 45 flowers have been counted at one time on this vigorous, tall plant. Stems range from 12-18 inches long. The light green foliage is described as having good resistance to disease.

An easy, inexpensive way to control gypsy moth, elm spanworm and inchworm attacks without spraying is suggested by the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation.

A 12-inch-wide strip of burlap is tied around the tree with cord or wire, secured in the middle and the top half folded down. This forms a shelter for caterpillars which may be knocked off daily with a stick into a pail of soapy water or kerosene.

More effective is to apply tree tanglefoot to a six-inch strip of material tacked to a tree five feet above the ground (out of reach of children). Change weekly or as needed.

If you use tanglefoot, clean it daily to remove sticks, leaves and trapped caterpillars with a homemade paddle.

These methods are described as effective in yards where caterpillars often web down from the tree during the heat of day and climb back up at night, when they are caught.

Independence for Bangladesh has meant something much different for the new nation's minority. In the ghetto of Mohammedpur, thousands subsist in squalor, disease and fear—people no one wants.

By TOM TIEDE

DACCA, Bangladesh (NEA) — For most of his life, Mohammed Rahman was an exemplary citizen. He worked in a bank, lived modestly, raised a small family. His only error, it seems, was his patriotism. He pledged allegiance to the Pakistani government — the "wrong" side, as it turned out, in last year's war for independence. Now Rahman is paying the price for loyalty.

Neither the winners, nor losers want him.

He is a man without a country.

He is not, really, alone. There are an estimated 1.5 million non-Bengali residents (called Biharis because many of them are immigrants from Bihar Province, India) trapped here in this same shameful pinch.

And trapped is the word. Many of them are living like rats. Since no government recognizes them, no government protects them and they must group together for security in some of the worst ghettos — call them informal concentration camps — in the world today.

Rahman's ghetto, as example, is a camp of 6,000 in a Dacca suburb called Mohammedpur. It virtually defies description. A still-water ditch alongside a road is used as the latrine. Water is so scarce people drink from their dishpans. Several families sleep in shared tents, so close, says Rahman, "that we have many marital problems." Some children are so malnourished that they haven't strength to wink flies from their eyes. Rats nibble at those residents too weary to move away. Fleas are so thick some people have shaved all hair from their bodies. "We are all dying a little every day," sobs one sick woman. "In the name of humanity, can't somebody help us?"

Apparently no one can help. Not yet, anyway. Several international agencies have done some small patching, a few Bengali social workers have offered assistance, there has been a committee formed to study the politics of the matter. But the prognosis is that the Biharis will continue to suffer. Partly because Pakistan warily refuses to accept all of them as refugees. And partly because, as one nationalist here says it: "The bastards were collaborators during the war. They tried to kill us. I hope they all rot to death."

And to some extent for good reason.

Before the war, following the 1947 partitioning of India which created then East Pakistan, the Biharis made few attempts to integrate into the Bengali lifestyle. They retained their native language (Urdu), stuck to themselves and refused to join the natives in protest against Pakistan oppression. Their loyalty to the Pak powers, at that time, was rewarded: Biharis became the more or less elite class in Bengal, holding a high proportion of official positions.

Then, during the war, the Biharis, or rather some of them, not only remained loyal to Pakistan but joined in the brutalization of Bengalis as well. Biharis looted Bengali homes. Biharis executed Bengali rebels. "One night," says a bitter Bengali merchant, "I was sitting home with my wife when the Biharis came. I looked out to see them shooting my neighbors. I sent my wife to try to hide, but they found her anyway. Is it any wonder that I hate them so much?"

Indeed, the guilt of some Biharis is beyond argument. Yet the mass punishment being meted out to the entire minority remains excessive. As ex-banker Mohammed Rahman says it: "The children didn't collaborate. The old women didn't look houses. If the Bengalis want to get their precious eye for an eye, let them try the wrongdoers. But, meanwhile, let's get these other people out of this sewer."

Rahman does not use the word sewer lightly. His camp is an open cesspool of waste. Vomits lie drying on the side of tents. Excrement lies in piles along the dirt paths. The collective result is that, as Rahman says, "We have a hundred diseases here. I am the doctor. I don't know anything about medicine, but I am the doctor. I have learned to deliver babies. I can mend broken bones. But look at these people. Last month we had 12 people die and I don't even know why. think we have cholera. I know we have starvation. But people drop over every day from things and all I can do is give them aspirin."

Sometimes not even aspirin is available. The Biharis have supported their ghettos largely by selling off their own belongings. Now the belongings are running short and so are the supplies. "We can't go on forever," says Mohammed Rahman, lifting his shirt to show his ribs. "If something isn't done, if somebody doesn't accept us, the Bihari problem will solve itself. All of us will die of neglect."

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH

AP Newsfeatures It isn't often an airline stewardess gets an opportunity to be featured on a postage stamp, but it has just happened on a new 10 center issued by Jamaica. The stamp is one of a two-part set honoring Air Jamaica, national airline of this Caribbean island.

Depicted in the foreground is the stewardess wearing the airline's original uniform. In the rear is a brilliantly striped orange, yellow and cerise DC-9 against the background of the island's Blue Mountains. The fuselage bears the Jamaican flag and the high-rising tail carries Air Jamaica's symbol—the doctorbird, a double-tailed species of hummingbird native to Jamaica.

The 4-cent stamp in this set shows an aerial view of the Causeway in Kingston Harbor.

Eight additional stamps were issued by Jamaica at the same time as part of its latest definitive series.

The Republic of China on Taiwan now is preparing for its first international stamp show scheduled Oct. 24 at the National Historical Museum in Taipei. It is expected that about 1,000 frames of stamps and other valuable philatelic items will be on display, according to the World Wide Philatelic Agency.

The purpose of the exhibition, says the director general of Posts, is to enhance "Friendship Through Stamps." All collections from other countries will be displayed in a court of honor. The event will be called ROCPEX '72.

On the other side of the Pacific, right here in this country, the recent Stamp Expo '72, held in Anaheim, Calif., broke all attendance records for such exhibits sponsored by the International Stamp Collectors Society.

One of the highlights of the show was a priceless collection from the U.S. Postal Service Philatelic Museum of die proofs of U.S. stamps from 1847 to 1967. Also on display was a collection of rarities from the U.S., Israel and Japan as supplied by the Smithsonian Institution.

The theme of Stamp Expo '72

Did you ever hear of the following flowers: diddle dee, scurvy grass, prickly burr, fachine, lavender and felton's flower?

Well, these and other unusual varieties are illustrated on a new set of floral decimal stamps issued by the Falkland Islands.

Some of the other flowers pictured are the pig vine, pale maiden, dog orchid, sea cabbage and vanilla daisy—all common to the Falklands.

The world's first postage stamp was the famous "Penny Black" of 1840 issued by Great Britain and featuring a profile portrait of Queen Victoria. Contrary to general opinion, it is not the most valuable stamp—even though it is the first and listed as No. 1 in the catalog. Many, many were issued and are still available.

Which brings us to the fact that stamp dealers and department throughout the nation have the Penny Black for sale without difficulty. At Gimbel's stamp department in New York they are being offered at $18 and $20 each.

Even if a person doesn't specialize in Great Britain's adhesives, it is always nice to say that one has a "Penny Black" of 1840 in his collection.

The Olmecs appeared about 1200 B.C., when their religious centers—the first that archaeologists know of in Middle America—began rising like the cathedral towns of medieval Europe to hold sway over surrounding areas.

The Only Revolution Is The Next Revolution

By TOM TIEDE

TANGAIL, Bangladesh (NEA) —The last time the world heard from Kader Siddiqui he was sticking a bayonet into somebody's belly.

It was in December of last year. The Bengalis had just won their brief but bloody war of independence with Pakistan. And the feeling of triumph was heady. Siddiqui, a bearded 24-year-old Bangla guerrilla leader, dragged what he said was a group of "collaborators" into a field and, while press cameras recorded the spectacle, "executed" at least four people with slow thrusts.

It made millions ill.

But not Siddiqui.

"I'd do it again," he says even now.

Indeed, there is worry in this land that Kader Siddiqui may be planning to use his blade again soon. He seems lately to be menacing with a knife at least symbolically in hand. This time he may be probing at the soft underbelly of the nation he helped create.

Like other guerrilla commanders of history, Siddiqui is said to be unsatisfied with his share of liberation spoils. He was, after all, the most popular brush fighter of the Pakistan conflict, and held fast to the struggle while other Bengali leaders fled to the security of neighbor countries. No doubt about it, say friends, "it eats at his gut that he didn't become president or something."

What he became instead was both an embarrassment and a burden episode made any official elevation impossible. And so, in a country founded on the principles of justice and the redistribution of wealth, Siddiqui has become a law unto himself, the "king of Tangail," is rumored to be redistributing at least some of the wealth here to his private account.

KADER SIDDIQUI, hero of the 'mukti bahini' but ...

Tall, skinny, supremely egotistic, the hero of the "mukti bahini" (freedom forces) lives like a conqueror in this important river town northwest of Dacca. He has taken over a former government resthouse, obtained possession of a new car (a rarity in Bangladesh), and decreed unwritten do-and-don't, can-and-can't regulations for the entire region.

His word here is law. Recently, Siddiqui's car was blocked on one of Tangail's dreadfully crowded streets by a man with a pushcart. The driver yelled something, but the road blocker didn't hear. Then Siddiqui himself emerged, growling. He didn't have to say a word. The man with the pushcart almost fled. Women drew their heads back into their windows. "They say," sighs one observer, "the chickens never cackle when he passes."

Even the traffic cop trembles when pointing the way to Siddiqui's two-story, back from the road, mango-shaped residence. And the home itself is crammed with hangers and hangers-on ready to do whatever for the man. There is the lad who helps Siddiqui dress. The one who brings in the heavily creamed coffee. The one who opens the windows. The one who closes the windows. The one who interprets and, most probably, the one who interprets for the one who interprets.

"I still have many friends," Siddiqui says, looking around, patting the heads of two small children ("not mine"), speaking ambiguously, he still does have friends. During the war his private army numbered "perhaps 15,000." For reasons for which nobody is quite sure, it now stands at "about 17,000." Few deny that Siddiqui is capable of raising the entire warrior mass instantly on call. "If I need them," he says, "they are there waiting."

This invisible army, "waiting," is of course Siddiqui's threat to Bangladesh. It is, in compliance with national law, officially "disbanded." Siddiqui surrendered his arms to the government shortly after the war. Yet ... "We are not without means," says one of Siddiqui's followers, who displays a small grin and a large .45 caliber pistol. "We handed in many weapons. But they were old ones anyway."

The worry then is that Siddiqui ("The people call me 'Tiger'") may be keeping his muscle in reserve against the day when the new government falters, or relaxes. "I believe," says one Bengali editor, "he is like most guerrillas — always unsatisfied, always glancing about. For him the only revolution is the next revolution."

So it is this new nation frets about still another problem of infancy. Starvation. Suffering. Now Siddiqui. Being king of Tangail is not enough. Sitting on his throne, holding court, the guerrilla monarch concedes: "I am always ready to fight for the people anytime I think it necessary." He says fight "for" not "against," but his past performances make it quite clear that as long as he has a blade, no belly in Bangladesh is truly safe.

Camera Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The other day I saw a movie short which made the prospect of visiting Germany invitingly enticing. The film, by Luft-hansa Airlines, is likely to tip the balance to the "Go!" scale for anyone undecided about seeing the upcoming summer Olympics in Munich or the world's biggest photo fair, Photokina, in Cologne, from Sept. 23 to Oct. 1.

While chief interest centered on the film's colorful subject matter, it was apparent much effort had gone into using a variety of basic cinema techniques to enhance audience attention. Most of the techniques are readily available for use by home movie fans in shooting their own films to avoid monotony and gain viewing excitement.

A primary rule in filming is change-of-pace shooting. There must be close-ups, medium and long shots. Some scenes can be staccato—short and snappy; others: 10 seconds and longer, as long as the action continues to move and is interesting. Few fans, however, take advantage of the fast and slow-motion speeds of their movie cameras (at 8 or 48 frames-per-second) to change the film pace. Yet they have built-in capability for film humor in switching from normal to a crawl or a frenzied pace.

There's also an inherent change of pace in filming reflections instead of the scene itself—mirrors, windows, pools, curved metal surfaces, European street intersection curved mirrors, etc. And there are odd camera angles: high, low and from inside natural frame-like devices.

An abrupt change can be made in tempo by focusing on a still picture or series of pictures and zooming in on a detailed portion of the photo. Focusing on feet or hands instead of on people are other ways to vary the pace of travel, vacation or home movie films.

The film on Germany illustrated all these film techniques and encouraged getting further information on highlights of Photokina, the World's Fair of Photography. It's held every two years in the 2,000-year-old cathedral city of Cologne on the Rhine River. It drew 232,000 visitors in 1970 during its nine-day run.

This year, some 700 exhibitors from all countries making photographic equipment will be taking part in it. The fairgrounds, directly across the Rhine from the famous twin-spired Cologne Cathedral, consists of 12 interconnected huge halls. The general public, as well as those in the photo industry, will come to see what's new in photography, at an admissions charge, of course. There are two facets of Photokina—industrial and cultural.

The industrial side of the fair is overwhelming in scope. From the smallest accessory to the largest laboratory in-stallation, if it's photographic, the newest developments will be displayed somewhere in one of the huge halls.

However, here is where the line is drawn separating the general public from industry representatives. Photo dealers have access to the "inner sanctums" of the trade display areas for private demonstrations along with a drink or coffee. The general public gets its information and demonstrations at the booth counters.

On the cultural side, under the direction of famed authority, L. Fritz Gruber, the aim is to impress and encourage all visitors with the important role which photography plays in our lives. Through outstanding exhibits, an international film parade and an extensive youth program, the presentations strive to be exciting, sometimes controversial, but never boring.

Among this year's headlines are: a multi-audiovisual show called "The Two Faces of Photography"; a display of "Famous Photographic Firsts" along with the very latest of each item; an exhibit on "Women" by women photographers of international repute, and a repeat of the 1970 innovation, a "Hang Your Own Photos" exhibit area, open to all, at no cost and at each photographer's own responsibility.

THE BOSTON SEASON
BOSTON (AP) — The Opera Company of Boston will open its next season in January, with five productions, all of them new.

The season will open with Smetana's "The Bartered Bride." It will close in May with the double bill of Stravinsky's "The Flood" and Kurt Weill's "The Rise and Fall of the City of Mahagonny."

Also, Beverly Sills will sing Rosina in "The Barber of Seville." It is a role she has not previously sung on a stage. The company also will do "Don Carlo."

The only one of these previously performed by this company is "The Barber of Seville," which was done in January 1959 and February 1963.

With His Money

By MARGARET SAVILLE
LONDON (UPI)—The boy was so absorbed in his reading he didn't hear his mother calling him.

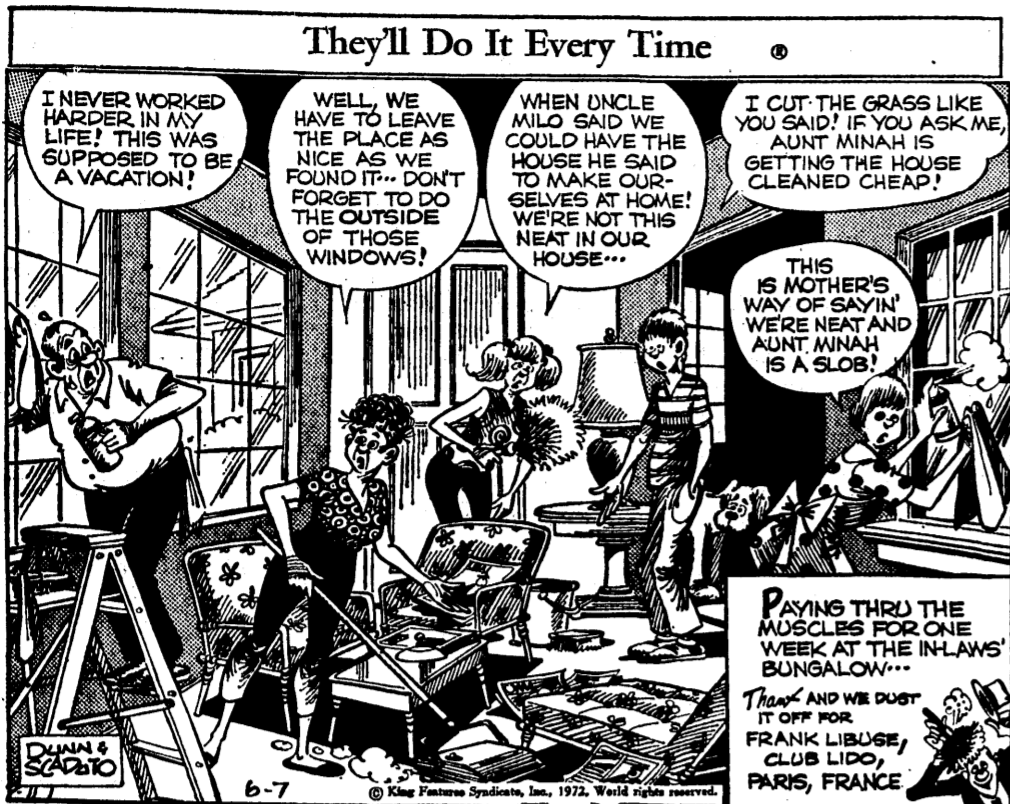

The book was not a schoolboy thriller. Its title was: "How to Make Money."

"That," said the young man, "is a jolly useful thing to know about."

Queen Elizabeth scanned a few pages of the paperback handed her by Prince Charles—then a teen-ager—and sadly agreed. She was trying at the

As the years went by it became ever more evident that

Interested in Finance

His great-uncle, Earl Mountbatten of Burma, recommended an intensive course at the Harvard School of Business Administration. But this would pose security problems for American authorities and he might be needed here for state duties from time to time. So friends think a spell in a big London financial district office, such as the Rothschilds, might be more practical—though they feel he will still try to study in the United States some day.

When Charles came into his estates at the age of 18 he spent several days examining the accounts and made clear he wanted to be informed of everything. He now attends meetings of the administrators, listens intently and makes many suggestions. Even at sea he gets regular reports and balance sheets sent to him. He is said to have a working knowledge of investments, bookkeeping, computers and allied subjects.

Keeps Private Account
In his mahogany desk at Buckingham Palace the Prince keeps a private account book setting out details of his personal shopping with a file for the bills. He knows exactly what he spends, does most of his own shopping and always asks the price before he buys even in exclusive London shops where nothing so casual as money is mentioned between salesman and customer.

His personal tastes are modest but he gives generous birthday and Christmas gifts. He wears his clothes for years, hates to part with old favorites. At Cambridge he used to cycle around with fellow students in shabby flannel trousers and an old tweed jacket with leather patches at the elbows.

The income of the Duchy of Cornwall is around 300,000 pounds sterling ($780,000) a year but Charles turns most of that back to the Treasury to be set against the Civil List which Parliament provides for the upkeep of the Crown. He keeps only $39,000 a year for himself.

Someday when Charles achieves his destiny an old nursery rhyme may come true. It goes:

"The King was in his counting house ...."

ready for quiet thinking, inward probings.

I know how that stage setting should be. There will be as an only sound the sweet warbling of a bluebird outside my dining room window.

The house will be in order. The kitchen table will be polished and gleaming. No games, tennis shoes or sticky glasses will be in evidence. A pie will be bubbling in the oven.

I'll sigh with contentment and wait for it to begin.

But somehow it never begins. Instead, I have just another afternoon.

One of those afternoons when the aquarium suddenly springs a leak and while you're frantically bailing fish the telephone rings.

And while talking on the telephone you glance out the window and see smoke coming from the tent that's been staked out in the yard to dry.

And spending 15 minutes explaining to the three little boys roasting potatoes inside the tent that you don't mind the potatoes but the round steak was for a casserole.

And then letting them eat it because you have to run inside the house to investigate the horrible noise in the basement. And holding the washing machine while it finishes its spin-dry in the middle of the floor.

And having your husband appear in the basement to ask why you aren't dressed yet, didn't you remember we're going out to dinner tonight?

Controversy Over 'Intelligence' Rages On

By DUSTON HARVEY
STANFORD, Calif. (UPI)— American blacks score an average 15 points lower than whites on intelligence tests.

Why?
This question—with its enormous social and political implications—has revived a long-simmering scientific controversy over the roles of heredity and environment in determining intelligence and has intensified the debate over the value and fairness of I.Q. tests.

It has pushed the dispute out of the staid pages of scientific journals into courtrooms, legislative halls and the often violent world of radical politics. The racial aspects of the scientific controversy were sparked by two men—Arthur R. Jensen, an educational psychologist at the University of California at Berkeley, and William B. Shockley, a Nobel Prize winning engineer at Stanford University. Jensen argued in a lengthy article in an educational journal three years ago that two-thirds of average I.Q. differences are genetically caused and that the "preponderance of evidence" indicates the same is true of black-white differences.

Shockley, who had been trying for several years to have the National Academy of Sciences investigate the dangers of "downbreeding" because of disproportionate childbearing among slum blacks, incorporated Jensen's work into his own theories that nature has "color-coded" men. He has promulgated them since with evangelistic fervor.

Most Experts Disagree

The majority of geneticists, psychologists and educational experts don't agree with the Jensen-Shockley racial conclusions—arguing that their thesis ignores the cultural, social and economic inequalities between black and white environments and contending that man's limited knowledge of human genetics and the learning process makes the question unanswerable.

Jensen and Shockley have been labeled "irresponsible" by some critics, "racists" by others, and this year they became the chief targets of a militant wing of the radical Students for a Democratic Society (SDS).

Their speeches and classes have been repeatedly disrupted. Personal threats against Jensen forced the University to assign him bodyguards. Shockley's classes have been invaded by white-sheeted protesters and he has been burned in effigy.

Both men also have been taken to task by the authors of scientific papers written in response to Jensen's original piece in the Harvard Educational Review.

The central piece in the argument is Jensen's 1969 article, "How Much Can We Boost IQ and Scholastic Achievement?"

His answer was: Not much. He based his conclusions on complex statistical analyses of I.Q. variations among 122 pairs of identical twins reared apart and among other kinship groups as well as on his own lab work on intelligence testing.

Intelligence a Tangible? "Intelligence, like electricity, is easier to measure than define," Jensen said. "But it is as real as atoms, genes or electromagnetic fields." He contended that psychologists and educational experts had uncritically accepted a strictly environmental "deprivation theory" and taken an "ostrich-like" stance about recent biological findings that showed the importance of heredity in determining I.Q.

Using test data from kinship studies done among white European and North American populations by other researchers, Jensen calculated the "heritability" of intelligence was about 80 per cent.

When "heritability," a statistical term, was translated into I.Q. figures, Jensen concluded that heredity is twice as important as environment in determining intelligence differences.

His findings applied only to white North Americans and Europeans, and Nathaniel Gage, director of Stanford's Center for Research and Development in Teaching, challenged his analysis of the 122 identical twins reared apart.

Gage said the I.Q. correlations are high because the twins' different environments weren't much different, while those few twins reared in very different environments have a much lower heritability.

Jensen termed Gage's work "very misleading" and insisted the most reliable I.Q. heritability figures range from 70 to 80 per cent. Other estimates range as low as 45 per cent.

The Effect

How does this effect the 15-point difference between the mean scores of American blacks and whites on I.Q. tests?

Jensen cited two studies, one published and one not, on the heritability of I.Q. among blacks which have been made since his article was published. They showed, he said, that there was also a large genetic component in intelligence among blacks.

The high heritability in intelligence within the two races increases the likelihood there is a high heritability in the differences between races, he said.

"It makes a very reasonable hypothesis," he says. "It's extremely rare and improbable in the animal and plant world to find within-group heritabilities where you don't have between-group genetic differences."

"It's on that basis largely that I think it's a very reasonable hypothesis that racial groups differ genetically."

Critics Reply Jensen's assumption that high in-group heritabilities make likely high between-group heritabilities has been attacked by a multitude of critics. "We know from animal studies, we know from human studies, that a heritability estimate has very limited applications," says Seymour Kessler, a behavioral geneticist at Stanford. "It only has validity for the specific population in which those measurements were taken and only at the time they were taken."

"You can't utilize that heritability estimate as if it were a God-given absolute quantity," he adds. "It has its limitations. You cannot take that estimate derived from white twin studies and apply it to explain the differences between average I.Q. between races. It's a simply invalid procedure."

Sandra Scarr-Salapatek of the Institute of Child Development at the University of Minnesota, uses an agricultural example to explain why she believes Jensen's assumption is scientifically invalid.

"Draw two random samples of seeds from the same genetically heterogeneous (mixed) population," she says. "Plant one sample in uniformly good conditions, the other in uniformly poor conditions."

"The average height differences between the populations of plants will be entirely environmental, although the individual differences in height within each sample will be entirely genetic."

Jensen readily concedes that high heritability within both races won't prove there is a genetic basis for their average I.Q. test differences. But it is grounds he says, for "a very reasonable and likely hypothesis" that differences in racial gene pools are involved.

Environmental Factors The seed example given by Scarr-Salapatek translates directly into a debate on the environment of blacks in the United States.

Jensen argues that the black-white differences persist even between children in the same socioeconomic class, as defined in terms of schooling, occupation, income and similar factors. American Indians, who have lower scores on a dozen socioeconomic measurements, do better than blacks in average I.Q. test scores, he says.

He concedes extremely deprived children do not realize their full genetic potential, but those he says, are only a minute portion of the population.

The environmentalists who oppose Jensen point to child-rearing practices, language differences, cultural differences that affect the relevance of home experiences to academic aptitudes, and the greater proportion of lower socioeconomic blacks.

"The generally lower scores of black children can be fit adequately to the (environmental disadvantage) hypothesis, with the additional interpretation of cultural differences to account for the lower scores of black children at each social-class level," says Scarr-Salapatek, who conducted a massive heritability study on black and white school children in Philadelphia.

"If all black children are disadvantaged to an unknown degree by being reared as blacks in a white-dominated society, and no white children are so disadvantaged, it is impossible to estimate genetic and environmental variances between the races."

Outspoken Shockley James F. Crow, a University of Wisconsin geneticist, put it this way: "It can be argued that being white or being black in our society changes one or more aspects of the environment so importantly as to account for the differences."

While Jensen has been the focal point of the scientific debate, the outspoken Shockley has been the public spokesman for their point of view. Shockley, who won his Nobel Prize in physics in 1958 as co-inventor of the transistor, began voicing his concern in 1965 that disproportionate reproduction levels at the top and bottom of the socioeconomic scale threaten the future of mankind.

He has tried unsuccessfully for several years to have the National Academy of Sciences investigate his fears of a "downbreeding" of the nation's population.

From his own and other studies on humans and animals, Shockley has concluded that man is "color-coded"—a catchword which has dramatized the controversy and made him a repeated target of campus protest both at Stanford and on speaking engagements.

"At the acme of unfairness," Shockley says, "are features of racial difference that my own research inescapably leads me to conclude exist: Nature has color-coded groups of individuals so that statistically reliable predictions of their adaptability to intellectually rewarding and effective lives can easily be made and profitably be used by the pragmatic man in the street."

Shockley will even put it more bluntly than that: "I'm trying to encapsulate that the American businessman can make estimates which are profitable to him on the basis of simply judging color. I'm suggesting that."

Does that mean the color of job applicants? "That's right."

Shockley's Proposal The Nobel Prize winner has also enraged his critics with a series of attention-getting suggestions about how to prevent the dysgenics disaster he sees ahead.

Two years ago, he suggested a massive program of artificial insemination to improve human intelligence. He said the offspring of mentally deficient women could be raised 25 I.Q. points by artificial insemination.

More recently, he has suggested a "voluntary sterilization bonus" in which non-taxpayers would be paid $1,000 for each point their I.Q. was below 100, if they would be sterilized.

Shockley calls these suggestions "thinking exercises," insisting he is "not advocating it, I'm advocating thinking about it."

Kessler, the Stanford geneticist, calls these "thinking exercises" a form of "guerrilla warfare" by Shockley, who "has gone on one head trip after another on what kind of eugenics methods to use."

Gage has branded them "a cloak for irresponsibility" and "a mass insult to people with I.Q.s below 100—half the population—who are being told they are genetically undesirable."

Colleagues React Other faculty members at Stanford have barraged Shockley with criticism in recent weeks, culminating in the rejection of his proposal for a graduate course on his theories.

Graduate Dean Lincoln Moses refused to authorize the non-credit course on grounds "your expertise for teaching this course is subject to doubts" and "the level of objectivity of the proposed course is at least as troubling."

The entire debate rests on the results of I.Q. tests—and they, too, are the subject of controversy.

Questions include what they measure, whether they are culturally biased in favor of middle-class whites, and their relevance to future attainments.

There is no agreement at all on what "intelligence" is. As Jensen notes, it is almost impossible to define. At the turn of the century, experts found evidence for seven or eight separate factors of intelligence. Some now find signs of more than 100. Geneticists believe it is influenced by the combined action of many genes.

But I.Q. tests ignore that question by ranking individuals without knowing precisely what is being measured.

Some psychologists believe it is innate reasoning power; others contend it merely shows what has been learned. Or, as David McClelland, a Harvard psychologist, puts it, "there is no evidence that I.Q. tests measure anything but the ability to take other I.Q. tests."

And so the argument goes.

Old Hand Lawn Mower Valuable For Gardening

By POLLY CRAMER
DEAR POLLY — My Pointer is for gardeners who have trouble making straight and even rows across the garden plot. It is so easy if you use an old hand lawn mower which makes two rows just the right width at the same time. Here is another Eddy Kantor hand from the American Contract Bridge League Bulletin.

South arrives at a poor six-spade contract, but you can't fault the bidding. There is tremendous duplication of values.

West gets off to what turns out to be a very friendly opening lead and it is up to South to plan his play.

Naturally, he ruffs in dummy. Then he considers his next play. One line is to play three rounds of hearts and hope to be able to ruff the third one successfully.

A slightly better line is to cash the ace of trumps first. You just might drop a singleton king. If you don't, you still play three rounds of hearts, ruffing the third one.

Both these plays fail because West holds just two hearts and will overruff the third lead and cash his ace of diamonds.

The other line of play is to cash just two hearts and then lead dummy's singleton diamond.

This play works. West wins the diamond and can't lead anything to keep South from gaining the lead in order to take a trump finesse.

This play is also superior. West needs the king of spades for his vulnerable opening. Thus, this play will work as long as hearts break 3-2 and as long as West does hold that spade king.

It fails miserably if West opened some sort of fancy bid with just nine high-card points, but that is the sort of chance a good player has to take.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Growling Stomach Is Embarrassing

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D. funny noises. When I am with a date at a movie and every-16-year-old girl who has a small thing is quiet, it seems to be but embarrassing problem. My growl twice as much and twice stomach growls a lot and makes death and I don't know what to do. I have tried holding my breath, tightening my stomach, taking deep breaths and not drinking fluids before I go out. I've also tried ignoring it, but nothing seems to help. Could you please tell me what causes this and how I can prevent it? Please try to print this before too long because I would like to have a cure before my next date. This may not seem important to you but it is very important to me. I have about decided to stop dating because it bothers me so much.

Dear Reader — That's not an easy problem to solve. It is caused by the normal contractions of the digestive tract. The entire long digestive tract is lined with muscles which contract to propel food in a normal fashion. The digestive tract is very susceptible to emotions and excitement. There are many things which will cause it to become "overactive." One of these is being hungry. It is literally true that a person's stomach growls when they are hungry. You might try eating before you go out on a date,

We'll pay you $288 a month to learn a skill!

Many jobs you learn in the Army could cost you a lot of money to learn in civilian life.

Today's Army pays while you learn. Starting at $288 a month, with promotions and raises as you move up in your job. Along with free meals, free housing, free clothing, free medical and dental care. And 30 days paid vacation each year.

The kind of job that can make your career in the Army, or in civilian life.

Like advanced electronics.

If you qualify, you can pick the electronics specialty you want. TV/Radio Technician. Data Communications Specialist. Teletypewriter Operator. Computer Technician. And others.

And there's a lot more you can get that few other jobs can give you. A chance to travel. To live and work in places tourists only visit. Like Europe, Hawaii, Panama, Alaska.

If you'd like to learn a skill you can call your own, send us the coupon, or see your local Army Representative you are a bit nervous. Perhaps after you have dated a little longer or are better acquainted with your date, this problem will not be quite so great. You might keep in mind that everyone has this in some degree and it is perfectly normal, so why be so embarrassed about it? If you are a good listener, you might find your boy friend's stomach growls, too.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I read the article about the woman with the problem of swollen lips, I had this same problem for a year and avoided many different kinds of food and still had trouble. I finally found out that it was caused by two different brands of lipstick I was using.

Dear Reader — That's very thoughtful of you. It illustrates again the multitude of different things which can cause people to be allergic and have swelling of the face or lip which is called angioneurotic edema. This again points up why doctors have so much trouble finding out what causes an allergy. It can be anything from lipstick or other cosmetics to things in the air, foods or even medicines. Another reader found it was aspirin.

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

COMPUTERIZED CLERGY
NEW YORK (AP) — More than half the clergy of the Episcopal Church—4,500 of them—have joined in a new data bank method, the Church Manpower System, for filling career openings.

In a first-year progress report on the new system, the Rev. Rodney Reid, executive director of the Clergy Deployment office, called the 50 per cent response so far by the church's 8,700 clergy a "most encouraging start toward meeting that age-old problem of the church world—matching the right person with the right

The Old Spy Business Thriving In Germany

BONN, Germany (AP) — Like characters in a James Bond movie, Communist spy controller X met agent Y at a secret Frankfurt location to brief him on his latest assignment.

The undercover spymaster offered his agent 100,000 marks—about $30,000—to meet and marry a senior West German government official to obtain classified information from her.

Other tasks included tracing the whereabouts of a colleague who defected to the West, getting information on West German electronics research and obtaining West German passports and blank auto registration papers.

Agent and spymaster were caught red-handed at their 15th meeting, the Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution, Bonn's internal security watchdog, reported Tuesday in its 1971 report on counter-espionage.

The spymaster, a trade mission representative, was deported, though his wife refused to go back to their unidentified East European home. The agent became one of 47 persons prosecuted last year on treason and espionage charges.

The West German report indicated this incident was only a fragment emerging from West Germany's underworld of East-West intrigue and espionage.

West Germany, an East-West switching point in more ways than one, has been a prime target for Red East European espionage ever since the cold war days of the '50s and '60s.

Removal of cold war tensions under Chancellor Willy Brandt's peace drive and the talks on normalizing relations with East Germany have not dampened the enthusiasm with which the spy game is played, the report said.

Official representatives of Soviet and Communist bloc countries in West Germany are heavily involved.

The federal office said there are 577 representatives of Soviet, Czechoslovak, Romanian, Hungarian, Polish, Bulgarian and Yugoslav national offices in West Germany.

Between 11 and 30 per cent of the aliens—in one case as many as 40 per cent—are suspected of being directly involved either in espionage or in gathering valuable nonclassified information.

Thirty-six Communist staff members have been unmasked as members of their national spy establishments since 1958, the report said.

But this espionage is less widespread than the classic, underground cloak-and-dagger stuff performed mainly by or from the territory of neighboring East Germany, the report said.

Two Soviet spy establishments—the civil KGB and the military GRU—have offices in East Berlin, from where they direct operations across the border, the report said.

Increasing numbers of East German spy instructors and couriers are believed to be operating here, working with local agents recruited by a variety of methods.

Without disclosing over-all figures, the federal office said East Germany is responsible for some 80 per cent of spy missions unmasked by Bonn's counterspies.

West German citizens are approached by spy recruiters when they cross the East-West border as tourists, to see relatives or visit trade fairs.

A more blatant method is to flood West German mailboxes with circulars which look like travel or similar junk mail but turn out to be thinly disguised attempts to arrange meetings between spy recruiters and Western residents.

The number of West Germans who last year admitted they had contacts with such recruiters rose by 22 per cent over 1970, the watchdog agency said.

Of spy recruits uncovered, some 45 per cent voluntarily admitted their involvement in espionage following an official pledge by Bonn authorities to treat such cases leniently.

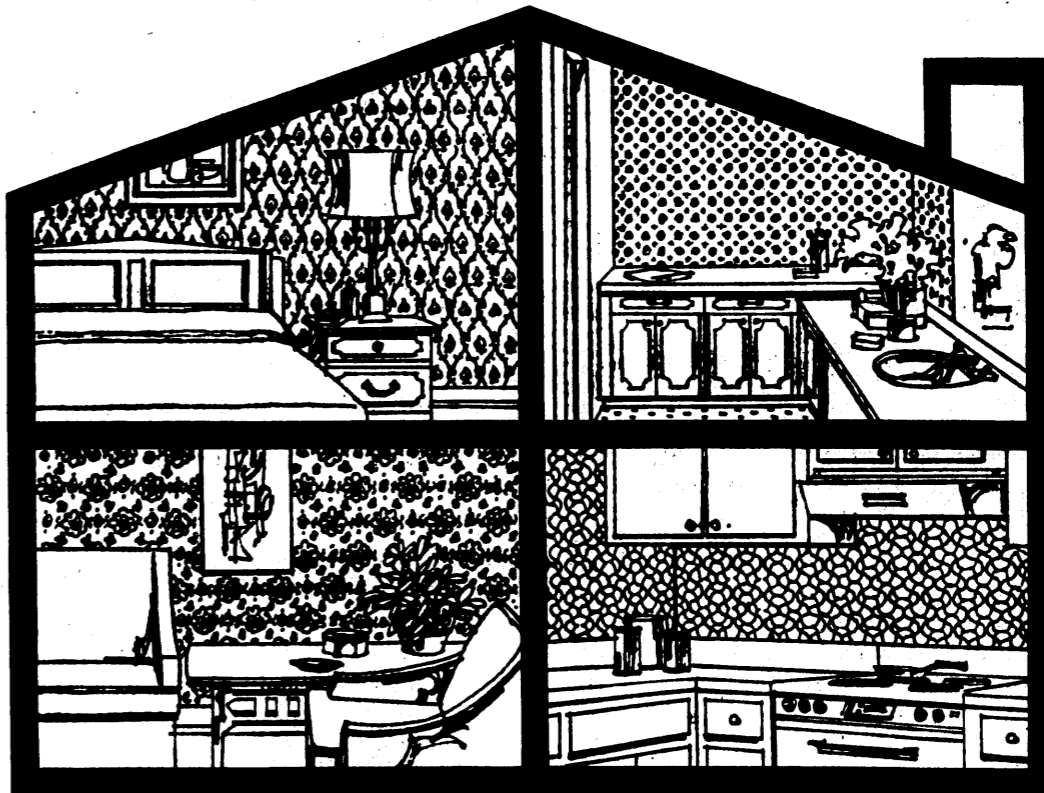

Called the Best HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Luchino Visconti's "Death in Venice" was named the best European picture for 1971-72 by the Danish Film Critics Association.

The famous "Prince of Peace" medal, distributed by The Catholic Commemorative Medal Society, is perhaps the most sought after of all religious medals. The original silver issue was completely sold out at $9.90 each, and today those fortunate enough to have more than one have no trouble in disposing of them at $30.

Whether or not the issue will be repeated is debatable. The society is producing 18-karat solid gold Prince of Peace Medals which have been a big hit with the Jesus movement youngsters. While these are being sold through leading jewelry stores over the country at $50 each, solid silver copies are available through the society's office in Canfield, Ohio 44406.

The very attractive likeness of Jesus Christ graces the entire obverse embayed only by the inscription "Prince of Peace."

Interested readers may like to write to Theodore A. Parent, secretary-treasurer of the Catholic Commemorative Society, Canfield, Ohio. All religious issues are in limited editions.

The Prince of Peace Medal

A closing date for readers of this column is June 14, 1972.

The American Revolution Bicentennial Commission, established by the Congress to plan and coordinate the 200th anniversary of our nation, has announced that an official Bicentennial Philatelic-Numismatic Combination (PNC) will be issued on the Fourth of July.

George E. Lang, chairman of the commission's Coin and Medal Advisory Panel, said the PNC will include the first of an annual series of congressionally approved National Commemorative Medals, as well as the 1972 set of Bicentennial Commemorative Stamps in a (PNC) Philatelic-Numismatic envelope.

A plastic window will display both sides of the medal. The four attached stamps will bear the official first-day-of-issue cancellation.

The eight-cent Bicentennial Commemorative stamps will be of normal commemorative size (15-16"x11-16"), horizontal, with identical inscriptions. One will depict a glass maker; the second a silversmith; the third a wigmaker; and fourth, a hatter.

Printed in a deep brown on a buff paper, each stamp will bear the words "Colonial Craftsmen," across top.

The medal, described in a previous column, will be housed in the center-right half of the envelope, with both sides visible.

Finished designs by Ralph Menconi, the sculptor of presidents, and Frank Gasparro, chief engraver-sculptor for the Mint have been approved by Mint Director Mary Brooks. Mrs. Brooks announced that the Mint will issue two million PNC First Day covers and will be accepting orders during the month of July only.

HOW TO ORDER

Orders may be placed for 1, 2, or 3 of the PNC First Day Covers on one order blank. If you are interested in obtaining copies of this American Revolution Bicentennial-Philatelic-Numismatic Combination First Day Cover, watch this column next week on how to secure your official order blanks.

Islands Are Home For Sika Deer

JAMES ISLANDS, Md. (AP) — Although this pair of tiny, desolate islands in Chesapeake Bay are located on Maryland's Eastern Shore, that hardly qualifies them as Far Eastern.

Yet thriving in thick, tangled bayberry undergrowth beneath spotty stands of loblolly pines is a herd of Sika deer, a migrant from the Orient that somehow have adapted to their harsh, almost aquatic, environment.

The saga of the Sika began 50 years ago when Clement Henry introduced several of the small animals to the uninhabited island.

Actually the Sika is not a deer at all, but a miniature member of the elk family. It bounces across the rocky terrain like a pogo-stick, whistles like a bird when alarmed, and trumpets loudly at night.

Amazingly, the herd has thrived and multiplied on the salt sea grass and bayberry brush of the island, which boasts only one fresh water pond.

Even the destructive visit of Hurricane Hazel in the '50s, which literally split James Island in two, had little or no effect on the herd.

Some of the deer have been trapped and stocked on nearby Assateague Island, which has been designated as a national seashore. That herd has already passed the 1,000 mark and still is growing to such an extent that limited hunting is permitted annually to keep the deer from over-eating their range.

Others have waded the shallow strait to the mainland of Dorchester County where they also flourish and now are legal game during deer season, though not too popular due to their small size. (They are about the size of a small goat.)

More recently, the Maryland Game and Fish Commission trapped some of the tiny animals and traded them to Florida for some southern wild turkeys.

JAZZ IN SPAIN

(AP) — The first International Jazz Festival of the Costa del Sol will be held in the new Tivoli Amusement Park in Benalmadena, Malaga, Spain.

The festival was organized by American painter and jazz enthusiast Martin S. Cramer.

Great Lakes Panel Seeks Dumping Ban

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The Great Lakes Commission adopted a resolution Wednesday calling for a ban of sewage and waste discharges into the lakes from ships plying the waters.

At its final business session concluding a two-day meeting here, the commission took the stand that federal regulation of discharges into the lakes were inadequate.

The commission said it would support state laws and regulations on the release of sewage and waste discharges from ships which are more restrictive than those proposed by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Also in the commission's final report was a plea for major increases in funds to combat pollution in the lakes.

The commission adopted a resolution calling for federal financing of $18 billion for grants to build waste treatment works during fiscal 1973-75.

Connected with the commission's concern over pollution was another resolution calling for full federal funding for the construction of land fill areas to receive polluted dredge spoils.

At present, 25 per cent of the construction costs for these containment areas must come from local sources. The commission said its position was that this is a regional problem, not a local problem.

It argued in its resolution that stream pollution "all the way through the entire region" contributes to the problem and it is not a direct result of local activity.

The commission adopted a resolution supporting federal funding of the demonstration project for extension of the navigation season on the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway. The commission called for $3.5 million for fiscal year 1973 for this program. The President's budget has $1.5 million for this.

The commissioners said the capacity of the lakes-seaway system could be expanded 25 per cent if the season could be extended three or four months.

Also agreed to at the meeting was a concerted effort in conjunction with the Maritime Administration and Great Lakes Task Force on another demonstration program. They are seeking congressional authorization for a program to permit a Great Lakes operator to set up U.S. flag vessel service overseas into and from the Great Lakes.

The commission said the reason for this is Department of Defense cargos are required to be carried by U.S. flag vessels.

ARMY REVISES BARRACKS SETUP
WASHINGTON (AP) — Old soldiers will never recognize the Army's new barracks.

Starting next year, the Army announced Wednesday, its standard barracks design will feature "clusters of one-to-three-man rooms" arrayed around a small lounge.

The design, a far cry from the traditional barracks with their long rows of cots, will provide increased personal privacy and comfort for the soldier, the Army said.

It's all part of the effort to lure volunteers and do away with the draft by next summer.

Wind will buff and puff in vain

NEW YORK (UPI)—An offshore drilling platform under construction at Brownsville, Tex., is being built to withstand hurricane force winds up to 130 miles an hour, accompanied by 50-foot seas.

To maintain its mooring under the impact of these tremendous forces, the drilling rig will use eight 30,000-pound anchors, each equipped with 5,000 feet of steel chain 2 1/2 inches in diameter.

YOUR BIRTHDAY AND HOROSCOPE

By STELLA WILDER

THURSDAY, JUNE 8—Born today, you know very well how to take advantage of opportunity—but you are somewhat given to procrastination and may therefore miss out on much that might otherwise be yours simply for making the right move at the right time. Because you fail at times to seize the moment, you may actually be forced to forfeit the hour and the speedy success you might have had becomes, instead, a process of slow, even though steady, uphill progress. But progress will be yours all the same; quickly or slowly, success will ultimately come.

You are by nature curious, a good student, a quick learner. There is nothing in the way of knowledge that you feel is outside the area of your interest, for you are interested in all things. Indeed, the diversity of your interests may actually prove a drawback to your success along any single line of work, for you may often be distracted into irrelevant areas of study or endeavor by your own curiosity about them. You are happier in such distractions, however, than you would be tied to a single effort.

Gifted with the ability to express simply and forcefully, you should have little trouble getting your ideas across to others. Indeed, this particular gift, if exercised, could lead you into an area of activity which could take you to nationwide, even world-wide, prominence in the field of politics. Only a natural disinclination for mingling with the public at large could keep you from it.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Friday, June 9

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)—A day to use great care in all matters—including conversation—affecting family solidarity. Now is the time to encourage youngsters to be tactful.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)—Consider every angle of every consequence before you promise another the benefits of your time and effort. You may be doing loved ones a disservice.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)—Consolidate your efforts. You can bring several projects to the point of completion at one and the same time—if you schedule detail work wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)—The wise Virgo will wait until the opinions of friends and family gel before making an irrevocable decision. You may have overlooked something.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)—Decide on your next move as soon as you intelligently can. Don't, however, be rushed into making up your mind before the facts are in.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)—Forethought will take you farther than hindsight—today and every day. Don't be hesitant about asking the advice of one experienced in the field.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)—Take care that a hot discussion doesn't disintegrate into a serious argument. Keep your temper—and your reputation for being reasonable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)—Keep your reactions below the boiling point and you should be able to avoid friction with one whom it would do you ill to anger.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)—An afternoon when polite conversation on the employment scene could turn into verbal warfare unless you take the initiative and bow out.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 21)—

Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, also was an expert on teaching the deaf to talk, and his teaching methods had lasting value in the improvement of the education of the deaf.

Reason prevails—but only if you are intellectually equal to the arguments that arise both morning and afternoon. Evening brings you a respite.

ARIES (March 22-April 20)—An especially difficult day for keeping the peace among co-workers, family, and friends.

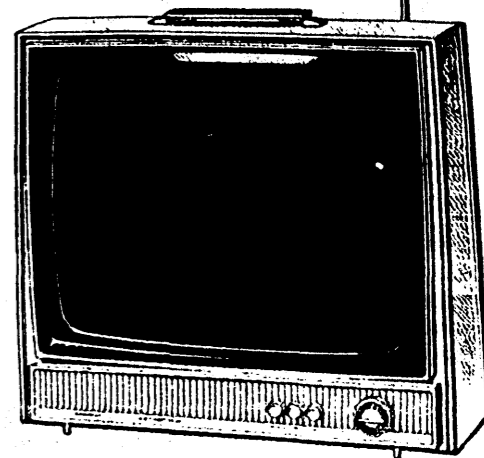

Do what you can to smooth over any harsh words.

TAURUS (April 21-May 21)—Though communications may not be all they might be this morning, afternoon hours should see you well informed as to what your next move should be.

50,000 Drivers Fail

Last year alone, over 50,000 Illinois licensed drivers failed the state written examination. This year the number of drivers that will fail could jump to a hundred thousand or more. Experts say—"One reason is, that rules and regulations change, and even some good safe drivers just don't keep up with the new laws." If your license expires this year, you may be among the hundreds of thousands that will be reexamined in 1972. So if you're nervous about taking the state written exam, here's good news. You can now purchase your own "self-scoring" test papers, complete with questions, answers and road signs you should know for that important examination day. ## To Tokyo Than Drive To Chicago

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

TOKYO (UPI)—Would you believe you can fly New York to Tokyo in about the same time it takes to drive between New York and Chicago?

Well, it's about 825 miles from New York to Chicago and it can be driven in around 15 hours at an average speed of 55 miles per hour.

In the same 15 hours, Japan Air Lines jet planes can fly you between New York and Tokyo at an average speed of around 475 miles per hour via its recently-inaugurated Great Circle Route.

The new circuit via Anchorage, Alaska, can save travelers from Eastern United States up to six hours and more than 2,000 miles as compared to JAL's New York-San Francisco-Honolulu-Tokyo routing. Including the two intermediary stops, it takes 21 hours for that 9,150-mile flight.

Via Anchorage, the air distance is cut to 7,090 miles with a resultant reduction in flying time of nearly 30 per cent.

Junket to Japan
I was a guest on the press inaugural flight along with representatives from newspapers, magazines, trade journals, radio and television from the eastern States and Alaska.

The flight was in daylight all the way. We lost one day crossing the International Date-line en route to Tokyo but will get it back on the return flight. The JAL cabin crews—stewards and stewardesses—lived up to their reputation for civility and efficiency. The service was outstanding. There were hot and cold towels, a choice of western and Japanese meals and beverages, and various cheerful courtesies.

We left New York's John F. Kennedy International Airport aboard JAL flight 005 at 10:20 a.m. on a Monday (the bilingual steward apologized for a 20-minute delay). The course of our DC8-62 stretch jet took us over Niagara Falls, the Great Lakes, the sprawling Canadian plains and the northern Rockies.

Lofty View
It was a bright, clear day and we could see the sun's rays glinting off frosty peaks, snow-choked ravines and icebound rivers and lakes. There were vast forests of pines, the dark green contrasting sharply with the virgin white snow of the surrounding terrain. A few wisps of smoke or clearings indicated man's presence in that desolate looking territory.

Anchorage still had evidence of the winter snows and the temperature hovered around the freezing mark when we landed at the airport at 6:20 p.m. EST or 1:20 p.m. local time. We were about one hour late mainly because of strong head winds.

While the plane was refueled, we roamed through the new air terminal building of Alaska's largest city. There's a duty-free shop for outward-bound passengers and a "Gold and Fur Shop," dominated by a stuffed 9-foot 1,300-pound snarling polar bear. The shop sells souvenirs made by Eskimos as well as other articles, including furs and skins, but no gold.

For those who can't wait, there are Japanese-made massage chairs where you can have your back kneaded by two rubber discs for 25 cents for three minutes. You can also relax in chairs with personal television sets, available for the same price.

Japanese Massage
We departed Anchorage at about 7:25 p.m. EST. about four hours later, the stewardess announced we had crossed the International Dateline and it was now around 1 p.m. Tuesday Tokyo time.

Tokyo was shrouded by smog, as usual, when we landed at Haneda Airport. It was 4:20 p.m. local time, or 2:20 a.m. EST, or about 45 minutes behind schedule, for which the stewardess apologized in English and Japanese.

Immigration, health and customs procedures took only minutes and we headed straight for the hotel for a shower, nap—and massage.

DOG GETS HEART PUMP — A Minneapolis medical research team announced Tuesday the successful implantation of an artificial heart assist pump into a dog, with researchers concluding the pump could be used on humans. The 105-pound St. Bernard dog survived seven days with his heart assisted by an electrically-driven artificial heart. The experiment was voluntarily terminated after seven days and the device was removed with normal heart action restored. Surgical team responsible are (L-R) Harold D. Kletschka, M.D., cardiovascular surgeon; Sister Victorine Long, St. Joseph's Hospital, St. Paul, Minn., where the implantation was made, and Edson Howard Rafferty, biomedical engineer.

Redwood Park: Living Museum Or Death Row?

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer

EUREKA, Calif. (AP) — A majestic sweep of giant redwoods — some taller than a 30-story building—stands today in the serene sanctuary of Redwood National Park, no longer threatened by the saws, axes and bulldozers of timbermen.

But few of the conservationists who fought so hard for creation of the park a little over three years ago are pleased with what they see there.

Timbermen and local residents also call the park a failure, or—at the very least—a disappointment.

Some even dispute the notion that the redwoods in the park are being saved.

The living museum envisioned in the park is really a death row for the redwoods, declares one frequently-heard theory in the redwood country, because the elaborate measures to protect the redwoods will destroy their natural cycle of regeneration.

That theory—advanced by some timbermen—is sharply disputed by conservationists. But that is only one of many controversies still raging over the 58,000-acre park stretched along California's rugged coast 300 miles north of San Francisco.

Conservationists want the park expanded to protect another 47,000 acres of redwoods from cutting by the lumber companies who own virtually all the land surrounding the park.

The conservationists also dispute some of the logging practices in the commercial forests around the park, and they have a separate, continuing, complex battle with timbermen on those issues—particularly so-called "clear-cut" logging.

The timbermen and many local officials say neither the lumber companies nor the local tax rolls can afford to have any more land taken out of their timber harvest reserves and put in parks.

Uses of the park—whether for campers, day visitors by auto or hikers—are also still topics of intense debate. Even who will run the park is not yet settled.

One thing seems agreed upon by all sides—Redwood National Park is not much of a park yet.

The park today is a hodge-podge of parcels of state and federally owned tracts mixed in with private timber land. It extends nearly 60 miles along the coast, including 30 miles of rugged, fog-shrouded coastal beaches and bluffs. About half is virgin timber and the other half is once-logged land, some as recently as 1966.

A twisting 10-mile-long, one-half-mile wide "tail" of the park extends south through privately-owned timberland up Redwood Creek to Tall Trees Area, site of the tallest living tree.

North of that is Lady Bird Johnson grove, site of presidential dedication ceremonies two years ago.

The main coastal highway extends the length of the park, but only one of three information centers is on that highway, and that center is not in the park.

The park's most notable attraction is a 500-year-old redwood tree which stands 367.8 feet high and is believed to be the tallest living thing on earth.

But the tallest tree is 8.5 miles from the nearest visitor parking, outside of the park, and Park Supt. John H. Davis estimates only 800 to 1,000 persons made the long hike last year to visit the tree. Altogether, only 685 signed the visitor's register at the tree.

That is not a sign of failure to Davis, who feels he is still just getting started on the complex task of making a national park. But it is a point of deep disappointment to many area residents, who were counting on tourism trade from the park to boost their sagging, timber-based economy.

The tourists haven't flocked to the park, and many local businessmen say they never will. But others are anxious to solve the knotty administrative and ownership problems between the state and federal governments and get a master plan adopted so the park can be developed.

Most of the issues revolve around one central, yet-unresolved question: What should a redwood park be?

Although most of the $92 million appropriated for the park by Congress in 1968 has been spent on land acquisition, the issues of the purpose and philosophy of the park are still not settled.

Brochures for visitors say the park was created "primarily to protect a representative segment of old growth redwoods and outstanding coastal scenery."

Specific plans are contained in a master plan which has been printed in a working draft but has not yet been presented to Congress for adoption. Davis says until it is adopted—possibly by this summer—little can be done to develop the park.

The plan has upset conservationists, because it concedes the present 50,000-acre boundaries to be final. It also says the park shall be managed as "a natural area" of the National Park System, which would preclude some of the intensive park development some persons hoped would be the base of a large tourist industry.

Davis says he envisions some sort of tram train system that would give visitors access to important parts of the park without the disruption of highways. But he says large tracts of the park probably will be accessible only to backpackers.

But the primary objective stated in the proposed master plan to "insure that there will always be superlative groves of redwood that possess the esthetic quality for which the park was established."

Even that is disputed by some timbermen, who say the redwoods will die if simply kept in the sort of preserve conservationists want the national park to be.

"They'll be calling it 'Hemlock National Forest' in 100 years," said Kramer Adams, conservation director of the California Redwood Association, the spokesman for the area's lumber companies.

Adams said redwoods in their natural state were periodically thinned by fire, to which the redwoods are more resistant than other vegetation.

The fires cleared the way for new redwood growth and kept the redwood forest constantly regenerating itself, he said.

"But now we've protected them from fire, and they'll protect them from cutting (in the national forest). Someday the only redwoods left will be those planted by the industry," Adams said.

The national park is made up of three state parks totaling nearly 28,000 acres and another 30,000 acres bought from local timber companies. Both portions of the park have created controversy.

The three state parks, developed over 45 years, are still operated by the state, despite strong subtle pressures from the federal government to turn them over to the National Park System.

But some of the state park land was donated specifically to the state, and a spokesman for Gov. Ronald Reagan says his staff is "still trying to figure out some way to put it together and solve the legal questions."

Almost all parties in the issue believe the parks must be merged, preferably under federal operation, although there is little, if any, criticism of how the state has managed its parks, which are the heart of the Redwood National Park.

State legislation has been proposed to give the parks to the federal government, and the idea has broad support from Eureka area residents, who fear there will be no major park development until it is all under one management.

That development is anxiously awaited. The purchase of the federal portion of the park took $25 million off the local tax rolls, cutting local tax revenues by $600,000 a year. There also is fear of eventual cuts in lumber company payrolls as the firms run out of timber to harvest.

"So far, it's been a paper park, not a going concern," said Dan Walters, managing editor of the Eureka Times-Standard. "People want the issue settled. Now that they have a park, they want to make it an economic asset."

Davis admits that "there has been local dissatisfaction" about the lack of development of the park, but he says tourism is up slightly anyway and that "some of this increase cannot help but have come from the publicity that a na-

PHYLLIS KANATZAR TO BE AWARDED DEGREE JUNE 11

Among the nearly 300 seniors to be awarded degrees at Lawrence University's 123rd Commencement Exercises, Sunday, June 11, will be Miss Phyllis R. Kanatzar, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. L. Kanatzar, 1841 Mound Rd., Jacksonville, Ill.

Television news correspondent Nancy Dickerson will deliver the Commencement address, and Lawrence will present six honorary doctorate degrees to distinguished alumni of Lawrence, Milwaukee-Downer College (which consolidated with Lawrence in 1964), and the Lawrence-affiliated Institute of Paper Chemistry, a graduate school devoted to sciences and engineering basic to the paper industry.

Miss Kanatzar is a Slavics major at Lawrence, which is a coeducational, residential liberal arts institution with a total enrollment of 1,400 students celebrating its 125th anniversary this year.

Powerful Fire Engine
The most powerful fire engine is one operated by New York City. It is a 2,400-horsepower engine and is able to pump 10,570 gallons of water per minute.

tional park exists here."

In the meantime, Davis says, some essential but not too noticeable things have been accomplished—a survey of boundaries of the park and the clearing of about 30 ramshackled old buildings from the site.

But, except for the building of two trails and a 20-car parking lot at Lady Bird Johnson grove, Davis concedes there is little evidence creation of the park has changed anything in the area the past 3½ years.

C. Robert Barnum, a Eureka businessman and a member of the park's master plan team, says there will never be any economic boom from nor any convention facilities built at the site.

He said the area's weather—rainfall up to 90 inches a year—its short vacation season, and its distance from other vacation spots preclude the building of any major tourist industry to make up for expected losses in timber jobs.

"There hasn't been any development because there won't be any, not because of the (split) management of the park," Barnum said. "I don't see economically there will ever be any development of any consequence, not in the foreseeable future, 10 or 20 years, at least, unless it's in the park itself."

David Van de Mark, president of the Citizens for a Redwood National Park, which spearheaded the original national park drive, says the Save the Redwoods League, Sierra Club and other organizations are mounting a new drive in Congress to dramatize the dangers to the redwoods in the present park.

He's 331 With Top Honors

By JOHN B. MARTIN

Richard Lee Pullam, 18-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Pullam, 2011 Plum, achieved a life-long desire Tuesday and he did it with honors. Ricky was officially graduated from Jacksonville high school with the class of 1972 . . . number 331.

Ricky probably has as much reason as anyone to be a "drop-out" but he wouldn't. He had good reason to remain confined to a wheel chair but he wouldn't.

Ricky suffers from hemophilia and is known as a "free bleeder."

A healthy handshake could leave the joints in his fingers swollen and stiff for a week. A slap on the back could leave a bruised imprint longer. An accidental fall could leave an arm or knee joint stiff for several weeks and a bad cut or accidental wound might be critical.

The coveted induction into the National Honor Society and long-awaited graduation ceremonies took place "at home." That's where the learning took place . . . he has been a "home-bound student" for nine years in District 117. He attended classes through third grade at Lincoln school classes for the handicapped but switched to homebound at that time.

A Study in Darkness

What is a day on campus like for a blind student? How can the blind and students with other disabilities be helped to come to terms with the world of studies and student life?

Thirty students and staff members at Kent State University, Ohio, took part in a "disability day" to try to find answers to such questions. They became "blind" or rode in a wheelchair for the day. Junior Mike Eber, for example, put on a blindfold and entered a new world of darkness.

The experiment was organized by Kent's Services for Handicapped Students to "sensitize" the university community to the problems of the roughly 70 handicapped students at Kent. This is only one of many efforts to help them. They already have preferred registration, preferred parking, transportation and housing—and the blind are provided with Braille maps, tapes of books and lectures, student readers and tape recorders. "Disability is a serious business," says Rosemary Vacci, coordinator of services. "The question is whether it is a liability or an asset." At Kent the question is being answered.

Normal walking pace seems terrifyingly fast. Mike finds guiding hand of sighted student a help.

Lighting up isn't too bad, but when to stub it out?

Mike attends French class: trouble came finding his way from class to class

Corn Syrup Cake Recipe

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Despite all the interest in soul food, the number of cookbooks written by blacks is limited. In our vast collection of cookbooks we have less than a dozen such volumes. Most of these were published in the last five years.

One, however, that dates back to 1959 should be recognized by anyone who is making a soul-food collection. It is "Plantation Recipes" by the late Leslie Bowers, published by Robert Speller and Sons. Mrs. Bowers was a black woman whose grandmother, a notable cook, was born into slavery on a South Carolina plantation.

Leslie Bowers, a college graduate, ran a successful restaurant in a suburb of New York City and her customers clamored for her recipes. We've chosen one of her cakes to pass on to you because it is a substantial old-fashioned type that still pleases. Here is our adaptation of it:

LESLIE BOWERS' CORN SYRUP CAKE
2 cups unsifted cake flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup (1/4-pound stick) butter or margarine

1/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 cup light corn syrup
2 large eggs, separated
4 teaspoons lemon juice or vinegar plus milk to make 1-3rd cup liquid

Grease and lightly flour 2 round (8 by 1 1/2 inch) layer cake pans.
On wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, baking soda and salt.

Cream butter, sugar and vanilla. Beat in corn syrup then egg yolks, 1 at a time. Stir in flour mixture alternately with lemon-juice mixture just until smooth each time. Beat egg whites until they hold stiff peaks; fold into batter. Turn into prepared pans.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean—25 to 30 minutes. Turn out on cake racks; cool. Fill and cover top and sides with chocolate frosting.

CHOCOLATE FROSTING
1/4 cup (1/2 of a quarter-pound stick) butter
2 cups sifted confectioners' sugar

1-3rd cup unsweetened cocoa
Cream butter with 1 cup of the sugar. Add egg; beat until blended. Add remaining sugar and the cocoa; beat until blended and fluffy. Makes about 1 1/2 cups, enough to fill and frost the top and sides of two 8-inch cake layers.

Pitchers Dominate Secondary Draft

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball clubs, possibly in that direction by the quick success of Pete Broberg and Burt Hooton, reached out for pitching help Wednesday in the secondary phase of their annual draft.

Bob Lesslie, a fireballing right-hander at Kansas State University, was made the No. 1 pick by the Los Angeles Dodgers, and by the time the first round was over a dozen pitching prospects had been tapped.

Broberg, now with Texas, and Hooton, who has pitched a no-hitter for the Chicago Cubs, were the 1-2 selections in the secondary phase last year and were pitching in the majors by the end of the season.

The Dodgers, however, weren't about to say Lesslie was another Broberg or Hooton, although they obviously were satisfied with the 6-foot-3, St. Louis native who was converted from a third baseman to a pitcher as a junior in high school.

Jim Kopatz Among 22 State Picks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The National and American leagues drafted 22 players from Illinois through the first 20 rounds of picks at the baseball summer draft.

The draft began Tuesday and was continued through Wednesday afternoon in its regular phase. The secondary phase will cover free agents selected in previous drafts but not signed.

Those selection from Illinois: 1st round—Denny Thomas, infielder, Southern Illinois University, drafted by the Milwaukee Brewers; catcher Richard Bengston, Peoria Richwoods, drafted by the New York Mets.

Thomas batted .369 and led the Salukis with 23 stolen bases last season. Bengston hit .481 to lead the Mid-State Nine conference.

3rd round—Melvin Ballow, infielder, Chicago Harlan, drafted by Texas; John Rockwell, second baseman, Chicago Lane Tech, drafted by Kansas City. Rockwell led Lane in hitting through an unbeaten regular season and was named to the all-star team at the state prep tourney last week for the second year in a row.

4th round—Ed Arkema, pitcher, Cicero Morton East High School, drafted by San Diego. He had a 9-1 record with an 0.33 earned run average this season.

5th round—Jim Sundburg, Galesburg High School, catcher, drafted by Texas; Harry Overy, pitcher, from Clinton, drafted by the Chicago White Sox; Jack Bastabel, Arlington Heights, drafted by Oakland.

Bastabel, now attending the University of Missouri, was a prep football all-star as well as a star third baseman and catcher at Wheaton High School. Sundburg led Galesburg to the Illini conference baseball title this season.

7th round—Wayne Popelock, pitcher from Burbank Reavis, was drafted by Texas; Daniel Radison, an outfielder from Columbia, was taken by St. Louis.

14th round—San Diego made Craig Bromann, a pitcher from Glen Ellyn, the first pick on this round.

15th round—James Kopatz, a centerfielder from Springfield, taken by California.

STRIDE FOR STRIDE: Oriole pitcher Jim Palmer races for first base as Twins' catcher Rick Dempsey goes for the ball in the second inning in Baltimore Wednesday night. Dempsey threw out the Birds' third baseman Brooks Robinson at second base but the Twins shortstop Steve Braun made an error on the relay to Herman Killebrew at first and Palmer was able to get two bases on the error. ## Bench Not Yet Carried Away

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—"I've been up at the top and down pretty near the bottom. What's happening to me now is nice but I can't get too excited about it. The season isn't even one-third over. That's why I'm not getting carried away."

Maybe Johnny Bench isn't, but a lot of other people are—over him.

Nobody in either league is swinging a hotter bat. Bench, blistering the ball at a better than .400 clip for Cincinnati the past eight days, has driven in 17 runs in that span and built himself a 12-game hitting streak.

He equaled a National League record with seven home runs in five games last week and you should have seen the one he ripped against the Mets Tuesday night.

It was his 14th homer of the year and the ball traveled 420 feet if it did an inch. Jim McAndrew, who served it up with one on in the fourth inning, didn't even bother looking at the ball going over the left centerfield fence. He merely listened when Bench made contact, and he knew.

"Everybody keeps asking me what I'm doing different," says Cincy's baby-faced superstar. "Actually, nothing. Last year I got into some bad habits at the plate. I know what I did and I don't plan to let it happen again. Right now I'm trying to be a little more aggressive at the plate, trying to stay back a little longer, be more compact."

One of the bad habits Bench developed last year after winning the NL's MVP award the year before was a loop in his swing. It was a little one, but Ted Kluszewski, the Reds' batting coach, picked it up and straightened it out.

Now you go into any of the other dugouts around the league and they'll tell you 24-year-old Johnny Bench has put it all together again and looks like the same ballplayer he did in 1970 when all he did was knock in 148 runs, hit 45 homers, bat .293 and make everybody say "there goes the first $200,000 player in baseball."

But it was altogether different last year.

Bench pressed, not only in front of the plate but behind it where he tried to catch the perfect game every time out.

The more he pressed, the worse he got. Then came the boos at home—something he had never heard before.

"It got to the point where you almost didn't care," he says. "I used to say some things under my breath when I'd hear all that screaming and booing, things I don't even care to repeat. This winter I made myself a promise though. I promised I'd never let it get to me again, that I'd never let the fans dictate me the way they tried to do."

Johnny Bench never really lost his fluid million-dollar batting stroke last year but instead of making contact the way he had the season before, he'd frequently swing through the ball. He simply didn't look

Cleveland Blanks Hapless Giants, 6-0

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Right-hander Reggie Cleveland fired a five-hitter and Joe Torre slammed his seventh home run of the season, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a 6-0 victory Wednesday over the San Francisco Giants and Juan Marichal.

Torre led off the second inning with his homer off Marichal, 2-0. The Cardinals added a run in the fifth on a single by Cleveland and a triple by Ted Sizemore. And they scored four times in the ninth on Jose Cruz' single, a two-base wild pickoff throw by Marichal, singles by Cleveland, Lou Brock and Sizemore, an error by leftfielder Ken Henderson on Sizemore's hit and a single by Torre.

Cleveland, 5-4, toughened after surviving a second-inning threat. Dave Rader doubled with two out and Marichal followed with a single to right. But Rader was cut down at the plate.

Cleveland struck out nine as the Cardinals raised their career record to 19-18 against Marichal. St. Louis is the only National League team with a winning record against the Giants' right-hander. Marichal has received only 32 runs from his teammates in 12 starting assignments. Wednesday, he suffered his third shut-out loss of the season.

The Giants, losing their fifth game in a row, only collected two hits off Cleveland after the second.

Perez Sparks Reds Past New York, 6-3

NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Perez drove in four runs, three with a first-inning double, and reliever Tom Hall snuffed out a late-game rally as the Cincinnati Reds trimmed the New York Mets 6-3 Wednesday night.

Perez' double up the right-center field alley off Gary Gentry, 3-4, cleared the bases and gave Cincinnati starter Jim McGlothlin a 3-0 lead before he threw a pitch.

McGlothlin, 3-4, rapped for two runs in the New York first, struggled throughout until the Mets chased him with another run in the seventh.

After giving up his eighth hit and fourth walk of the game in that frame, Hall came on to strike out John Milner for the final out with two men on base.

The left-hander then sailed through the eighth and ninth innings to notch his third save of the season.

The Reds steadily built on their early 3-2 lead, scoring runs in the fourth, sixth and seventh.

The Reds made it 5-2 in the sixth on Joe Hagge's sixth home run of the year and 6-2 in the seventh on Perez' fourth RBI of the game. Tommie Agee's second RBI of the game, a force-out bouncer in the seventh, gave the Mets their final run.

Orioles Break Out Of Slump, Rip Twins 11-2

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles, threatened with a shake-up by manager Earl Weaver, thrashed the Minnesota Twins 11-2 Wednesday night to end a five-game losing streak.

Bobby Grich, one of three youngsters in the line-up who combined to score seven runs, socked a three-run homer in the first inning off loser Jim Perry and eased the way for Pat Dobson's sixth victory.

Veteran Dave Johnson drove in two runs while two other veterans, Boog Powell and Brooks Robinson, had two-hits and one RBI apiece.

After Tuesday night's loss dropped the Orioles under the .500 mark for only the second time in four years under Weaver, the manager implied that some of his veterans may be "over the hill."

The Twins made four errors, three in the fifth inning when just one of Baltimore's five runs off reliever Bob Gebhard was earned.

Minnesota had a hit in all but two innings but didn't score until the eighth when a single by Steve Braun, Cesar Tovar's triple and an infield out sent two runs across.

Oakland Attack Notches Sixth Straight, 10-4

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Oakland A's stretched their winning streak to six games with a 14-hit attack, including home runs by Joe Rudi and Mike Epstein, to beat the Cleveland Indians 10-4 Wednesday night.

Rudi's fourth homer triggered the A's romp in the first inning and three batters later Epstein clubbed his seventh homer off loser Dick Tidrow, a two-run shot.

Ken Holtzman tied as the winningest pitcher in the major leagues as he raised his record to 9-3. Gaylord Perry of Cleveland and Detroit's Mickey Lolich also have won nine.

Jerry Moses homered for the Indians in the fifth inning after they scored three unearned runs in the second because of an error by Oakland shortstop Bert Campaneris.

Oakland broke a 3-3 tie with a run in the third when Rudi walked and came around on Reggie Jackson's single and Sal Bando's double. The A's broke open the contest in the fourth when they erupted for four runs on four hits, one of which was a two-run triple by Rudi.

Key To The Mint Has Sensational Stakes Workout

NEW YORK (AP) — Paul Mellon's Key To The Mint, a top candidate for the Belmont Stakes, will go into the race of a sensational workout Wednesday that foiled his trainer and exercise boy.

Key To The Mint, working with a stablemate, 4-year-old Farewell Party, who carried less weight, went three-quarters of a mile in 1:10. Farewell Party was clocked in 1:10 2-5.

"He did it easy," said trainer Elliott Burch who added that he had planned to work Key To The Mint in about 1:12. "I was surprised. It was sensational."

"He did it so easy I thought he had gone in about 1:11 and change," said exercise boy Norman Kerr.

Even In Solitude

SOLITUDE, Ind. (UPI)—The people in this tiny hamlet, all 40 of them, have a perfectly delightful habit or maybe you'd call it a frightfully maddening one.

They accept all news the same way, stoically.

The shooting of George Wallace in Maryland provoked hardly any more conversation than did the Lakers winning their first professional basketball championship in Los Angeles.

Nor was there any excitement in the streets over the Mets going out and getting Willie Mays.

There couldn't be.

Solitude has no streets.

That doesn't mean folks here have no interest in what's going on in the world, including one of the sub-divisions, the world of sports.

Solitude's two dozen or so homes near the wide spot in the highway that marks the downtown area almost all have TV aerials and the folks here have seen the events of the world and the sports world that way, just like the folks in the Bronx. But the slick pro sports don't become quite as important here, somehow.

It's Still a Good Sport

"Baseball?" says bony, blue-eyed Henry Ostermann, standing in front of his green-and-white neat-as-a-pin farm house situated only a few yards off dusty, gravel-topped Copperline Road. "I still think it's a good sport. Seems like it's losing out to football and basketball, though. I don't know why. Maybe the strike had something to do with it. You say you're out of New York? How come they ain't playin' Willie Mays? What did they get him for anyway, just to sit around? Maybe he's getting old."

Henry Ostermann, who has an idea 41-year old Willie Mays may be getting old, is a skinny young fellow himself of 33, but his memory is sharp.

"Solitude had a baseball team once. No more. Back in the '20s it would take on all comers and beat 'em. We had what you call 'town ball' in those days. All those places around here had teams. Farmersville, Grafton, Caburn..."

Primarily a farming community with good rich soil, Solitude sits between Mt. Vernon, Ind., the world's largest manufacturer of high-pressure boilers, and New Harmony, Ind., which lays claim to being the home of the first women's club ever established in the state.

Nestled in the southwestern corner of Indiana, only a few minutes from the Wabash River, Solitude still is proud of that early baseball team and now considers itself as integral a part of Middle-America as Davenport, Iowa.

The Only Business Place

Dawson's General Store on State Road 69 is the hub, nub, and heartbeat of Solitude. It's the only business place in town and really the only place you can call to find out if the two-lane highway has been washed out by the Wabash backing up into Big Creek.

Mark Dawson, proprietor of the store, inherited it from his father. He is a stocky, white-haired 75-year old who used to be far more interested in sports than he is now.

"I liked Babe Ruth," he says.

"I don't pay too much attention to the games anymore, especially in the big leagues. I've gotten more kick out of Mt. Vernon High School baseball than anything else."

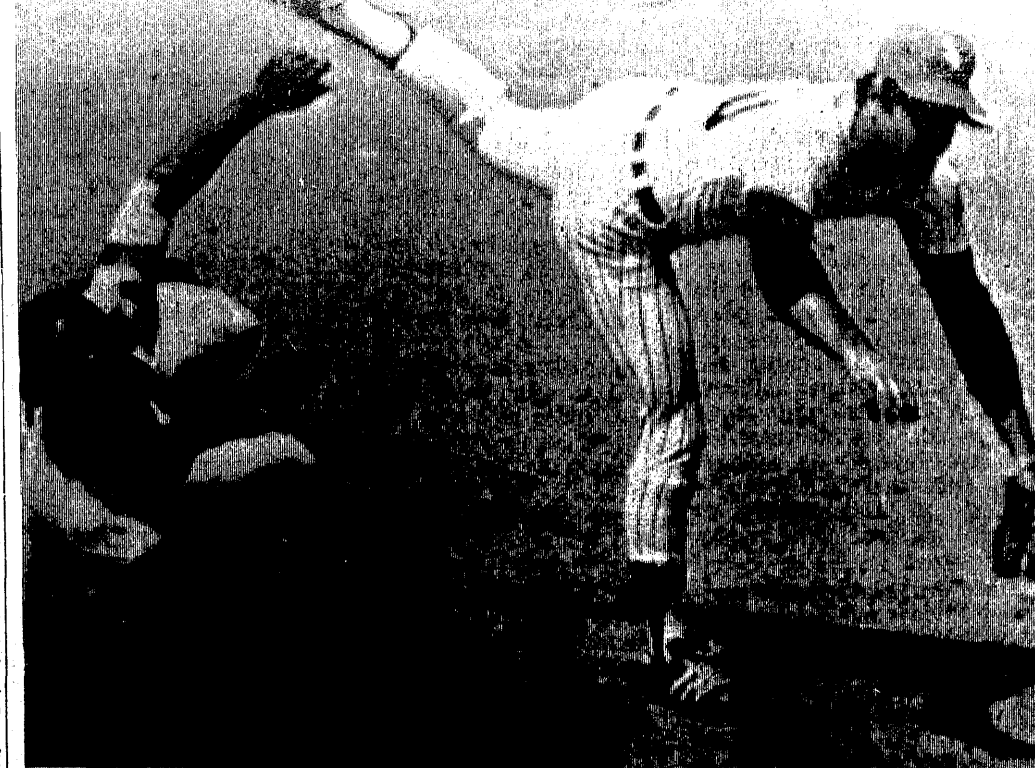

Still, Mark Dawson puffs up a bit when he lets you know the late Gil Hodges, who was born in Princeton, Ind., about 40 miles from here, once stopped in his store. So did Homer Capehart, the former Indiana U.S. senator.

Dawson's wife helps him and says many of the people who stop in ask how the village got its name but nobody ever has been able to furnish a positive answer.

"As I understand it, back in the late 1880s, the railroad built a stop here and had a contest to decide what this should be called," she said. "People were asked to submit names. Someone suggested 'Solitude' and it was chosen."

He Enjoys Sports

bling a young Ron Swoboda, has lived here all his life. He enjoys sports, baseball and basketball particularly. He pitches for the Farmersville High baseball team but has no illusions about his baseball potential.

"I follow the St. Louis Cardinals but they made a mistake trading away Steve Carlton," he says. "I like the way Lou Brock and Joe Torre play. They look to me like they do their job. Yes, I play myself but I have never thought of being a professional. I ain't good enough for that."

There has never been any scandal in Solitude, any big fire, or any big anything for that matter.

"We've never had trouble of any kind there," says Carl "Corky" Keitel of the Mt. Vernon Police Force. "I've been on this job 17 years now and don't know of an arrest ever being made in Solitude."

Roberto Claims Tightest Epsom Derby Run Ever

EPSOM, England (AP)—Darby Dan Farm's Roberto, the 3-1 favorite, won the closest Epsom Derby in its 193-year history Wednesday nosing out Rheingold, a 22-1 outsider.

Roberto, who ran the 1 1/2 miles in 2:36 4-5, survived a photo finish and a steward's inquiry to earn $165,929 for owner John Galbreath and give jockey Lester Piggott a record-equaling sixth Derby triumph. Only Steve Donoghue had won so many times before, between 1915 and 1925.

Pentland Firth, a 50-1 longshot who led most of the way, finished third, three lengths back. The steward's inquiry was into apparent jostling among the three leading horses as they approached the finish line.

Roberto, sired by Hall to Reason out of Bramalea, is the fourth American-bred 3-year-old to win the Derby in five years. Raymond Guest won with Sir Ivor in 1968, the late Charles Engelhard's Nijinsky took it in 1970 and Paul Mellon's Mill Reef won last year.

Grant Penalty

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A $72,000 penalty against race driver Jerry Grant was upheld Wednesday by the United States Auto Club's board of Judges.

Grant was dropped from second to 12th place in the Indianapolis 500 auto race May 27 for using fuel from teammate Bobby Unser's reserve tank.

The USAC panel said, "The appeal panel is of the opinion that a rules violation clearly took place and the stewards ruled properly. Accordingly, the appeal panel unanimously agrees the Gurney-Grant appeal is denied."

The Grant and Bobby Unser cars are owned by former racer Dan Gurney.

Charles T. Brockman, USAC president, read the decision at a news conference in his capacity as chief judge of the appeal panel.

The decision cited the 500-mile race Supplementary Regulation No. 23, "The maximum fuel supply other than that carried in the car, shall be 250 gallons stored in one cylindrical container of not more than 400 gallons maximum capacity."

The decision said while the supplementary rule was established originally for safety to reduce the fire hazard in the pits, "as the fuel consumption of the racing engines increased substantially, it eventually became a racing rule, which could have a decisive effect on competition."

The panel said the rule does not state specifically that a driver can't use fuel from a teammate's pit, but "it is inescapable that if a car used fuel from the pit of another car, its maximum fuel supply would be in excess of 250 gallons."

Brockman said that Indianapolis Motor Speedway stewards testified the drivers were told prior to qualifications that they could not use fuel from another contestant.

The decision said, "The appeal panel does not dispute Mr. Gurney's testimony that the refueling operation was a mistake and that the car did not need additional fuel... The panel concedes that Mr. Gurney's chronology of events is very plausible and in all probability is entirely true."

"However, the appeal panel does not feel that his line of testimony is relevant. The stewards cannot be responsible for the mistake of a contestant."

The panel said the fuel regulation did not state a specific penalty. It said, "The stewards' reason that car No. 48 (Grant) was legal through the completion of 188 laps and therefore should be credited with that distance. However, at the point the violation occurred, the car was no longer legal, and should not be credited with any laps after that point."

"The appeal panel feels this line of reasoning is fair and is not arbitrary. In fact, any other decision might well have been considered arbitrary."

The protest against Grant and Gurney was filed by George Bignotti, crew chief for the Parnelli Jones team. The decision advanced three of Bignotti's drivers in the final standings.

Sheltering Hijackers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid hints they might clear the skies of commercial airliners for a day, American pilots have begun boycotting countries that shelter airline hijackers.

The AFL-CIO Airline Pilots Association said Tuesday its 46,000 members will not fly to Cuba or Algeria or any other country which has refused to prosecute or extradite hijackers.

Morgan Native, Orville Dixon, Dies Wednesday

AUBURN — Morgan native, Orville Ray Dixon, 52, of Auburn died at 3:20 p.m. Wednesday at Memorial hospital in Springfield.

He was born Jan. 25, 1920 in Alexander, son of Oliver and Mary Meadows Dixon. He married the former Adolphine Charles Nov. 18, 1939 at Bowling Green, Mo. She survives along with a son, William Ray, at home.

Other survivors include one brother, Sam of South Greenfield, Mo., and one sister, Mrs. Sylvia Lyons of Fla.

Arrangements are incomplete.

An ALPA spokesman said the boycott also will extend to airlines in other countries which serve Cuba or any of the Middle Eastern nations which have given airline hijackers refuge.

The spokesman added that a 24-hour refusal to fly on all U.S. airlines anywhere is under consideration as a means of showing how seriously the pilots are taking the hijacking problem.

No American-owned planes fly to Cuba so for U.S. pilots that portion of the boycott will have no impact.

In a letter, ALPA President John J. O'Donnell notified President Nixon Tuesday that he had directed pilots of 36 U.S. airlines holding contracts with the union to begin the boycott.

O'Donnell said he had asked leaders of other U.S. unions to see that servicing and ground maintenance of the aircraft of such nations also is withdrawn.

He said the 60-nation International Federation of Air Line Pilot Associations, meeting in London next Thursday and Friday, has been urged to join in.

O'Donnell also called on Nixon to bar from the United States the aircraft of nations that permit or condone air piracy.

"As our President, we look to you to work with other world leaders to insure that our boycott actions are effective," O'Donnell said in his letter to Nixon.

O'Donnell said Federal Aviation Administration figures show 450 airline passengers and crew members have been murdered by airline criminals around the world since air service was begun. Many others have suffered physical and psychological injuries of permanent nature, he said.

He said U.S. airlines have been victims of 147 hijacking assaults by 193 persons, of whom 107 are still fugitives. So far this year, he said, more than 1,100 U.S. passengers and crew members have been forced to go along in 18 hijackings.

FORMER ASHLAND GIRL GRADUATES AT CORNELL

ASHLAND — Marian Lohman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lohman, Springfield, was recently graduated cum laude from Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa.

She received a BA degree in history and sociology.

Miss Lohman will be employed in the St. Louis area.

The Walter Lohmans are former Ashland residents.

It was understood that McGovern managers had been waging a longdistance telephone effort from Los Angeles to persuade Muskie to sign on with their candidate.

McGovern himself said he wasn't pressing anyone to withdraw. He said he would be talking with both Humphrey and Muskie, and planned also to visit Wallace at the Silver Spring, Md., hospital where the Alabama governor is recuperating from wounds suffered in a May 15 assassination attempt. Wallace remains partially paralyzed.

McGovern planned to campaign Friday and Saturday in New York for a June 20 primary in which he expects to gain at least two-thirds of a 278-vote convention delegation, then fly South for a three-day unity campaign swing in the region of Democrats most hostile to his nomination.

Gary Hart, McGovern's campaign director, said he expects the front-runner will have at least 1,335 delegates and possibly close to 1,400, after the New York primary, last of the season.

That would put him close enough to nominating strength so that late switches before or during the first ballot could put

The former vice president got 90 minutes' sleep, and flew to Houston to talk with Democratic governors, many of them skeptical or hostile to the prospect that the liberal McGovern will lead the ticket.

Humphrey said the test of a nominee shouldn't be who won the most primaries; it should be who can do the best job for the Democrats in the Nov. 7 election against President Nixon.

Humphrey said he did not think there would be a first ballot nomination at Miami Beach because "there's still a lot of bargaining to do." He said some of it would have to be done with delegates now supporting Wallace.

The Minnesota senator appeared to be getting a start on that process when he was asked whether he could accept Wallace as his running mate. He had flatly ruled that out before the California primary.

His answer in Houston: "I have said repeatedly that if a man would accept the platform he'd be eligible in my book for vice presidential nomination. . . I think it's highly unrealistic that George Wallace and Hubert Humphrey would be on the same ticket."

When McGovern was asked Wednesday about vice presidential possibilities, he said his main consideration would be to find a running mate well qualified to take over the White House. But he added the nominee should also have views "in the same ball park as mine."

Humphrey described his role in Houston as that of the party's titular leader, seeking to bind up campaign wounds for the sake of unity.

McGovern had met with the governors early Tuesday in what he called a mission of reconciliation, but didn't appear to have reconciled the more conservative Southerners who fear his nomination would put the ticket in trouble in their states.

Nonetheless, McGovern said in Los Angeles that if nominated he would wage "a national campaign" and win some Southern and border states which Humphrey lost as the Democratic nominee four years ago.

Danny Raymond Northrop, 32, of Jacksonville was found dead in his auto about 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Coroner John B. Martin said the death was an apparent suicide. A hose was hooked from the exhaust pipe to the interior of the closed auto.

Coroner Martin said Northrop was found in a timber and had been there at least 24 hours. An inquest will be held later.

The body was removed to the Williamson Funeral Home. Further arrangements are incomplete.

State Faces Bankruptcy: Treasurer Dixon

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — State Treasurer Alan J. Dixon charged Wednesday that the state will "start going bankrupt" in September and face a deficit of $135 million if spending stays at present levels.

Budget Director John W. McCarter Jr. immediately issued a statement disputing Dixon and saying that "based on the governor's proposed budget and revenues anticipated, there will be no cash crisis."

Dixon blasted both Republican Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie and his Democratic rival, Daniel J. Walker, for "going around the state leaving people with the impression that everything's just fine and hunky dory when it's not." Dixon is a Democrat.

"Beginning next September, the state will experience a cash drain of more than $370 million, putting general funds in the red by January 1973," Dixon claimed.

By the close of the fiscal year, Dixon said, the total "cash drain" would reach $450 million with an "absolute deficit . . . of $135 million."

The treasurer urged both legislative leaders and the governor's office to reduce planned fiscal 1973 spending, but under repeated questioning, declined to make a recommendation on where cuts should be made.

"I'm not in the legislature and I'm not the governor," he said. "It's neither my right nor my prerogative to tell them where to make reductions."

"They could take a look at welfare, though," he said. "It might be overstated."

McCarter replied that "our projections for fiscal 1973, based on the governor's proposed budget and revenues anticipated, show that there will be no cash crisis."

My sincere thanks to my doctors and to the nurses on first floor, for their excellent care, and for the "Happy Birthday Song", and Birthday cake, and for all the other many acts of kindness, while I was a patient at Passavant hospital. Also thanks to my friends, and relatives for cards, visits, and care, during my illness.

William Metz

Resignations due to pressure were approved for three veteran faculty members. Ernest J. Canuto, Armstrong teacher, will retire for health reasons after 22 years of service; Mrs. Esther White, South Jacksonville teacher, retired after 34 years of service; Mrs. Mildred Seaman, special education teacher, also presented her retirement resignation. All three were effective at the end of the school year.

Other Pay Raises
Pay increases for non-certified personnel were approved by unanimous vote of the board. Custodians and maintenance personnel received a raise from $3.20 to $3.38 per hour and from $2.95 to $3.11, costing an estimated $13,150.

Cafeteria workers received a five-cent an hour increase estimated to cost $1,745. Bus drivers received $7.50 per month costing $1,485. Secretaries received from $5 to $15 monthly, depending on experience level, estimated to cost about $8,500.

No More Teachers
The board defeated a move to hire additional teachers for the district by a four to two ballot. Those voting in favor were: Heaton and Kurtz; those opposed, Colclasure, Doyle, Morris and Fairfield.

The proposal as outlined by Dr. Crone would have eliminated one elementary teacher but increased the net by 2.2 teachers. This would handle 16 classes, at Turner and high school.

Dr. Crone said enrollment next fall would be "about the same" as this year.

J. Ivan Heaton, president of the board, read his comments to the board. He said he would hope that the student needs would be uppermost in the minds of the board and that he hoped the board would not "shortchange" the students in an effort to "cheaper" the education for the sake of a few cents in taxes.

Heaton described the board's "physical stewardship" as excellent. He said with the addition of the two new schools and remodeling of two others plus the addition scheduled at Murrayville, the buildings are in good shape. He said the tax rate for District 117 ranked 257 from a field of 404 and was the "lowest cost per child in Morgan county."

Cost of the additional 2.2 teachers would be about $22,000 according to Dr. Crone.

Colclasure contended that a large number of faculty had been added during the past four years with a resulting decrease in student population.

Dr. Crone said faculty had increased about 50 since 1967 and that students had increased about 360. Crone asked for a decision by the board Tuesday evening so that the master schedules could be sent to Iowa City for insertion in the computer.

Unless classes can be shifted, along with faculty, the students in the 16 classes will have study hall or other subject of their choice.

A proposal to spend $228,000 available in the site and construction fund at other schools was rejected in favor of future meetings with the board serving as a committee of the whole. Projects at all district schools were indicated but some board members had other priority views.

Low bids were accepted for: anti-freeze, Ware-Klump Oil Co.; gasoline, Standard Oil; fuel oil, Apex Oil Co.; tires, General Tire Co. Bids on milk were continued to a later date.

IPA Appears In Osco Drug Suit

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Pharmaceutical Association was granted permission Wednesday to appear as a friend of the court in a suit filed by the Osco Drug Co. against the Illinois Pharmacy Board.

The ruling by Circuit Court Judge Charles R. Barrett will allow the association, composed of 2,500 pharmacists throughout the state, to advise the court on issues surrounding the litigation.

Osco filed suit Nov. 3, 1971 seeking to bar the pharmacy board from suspending or revoking licenses of pharmacists who post prescription drug prices.

Osco, a division of Jewel Tea Co., began posting prices last Oct. 12. A week later, the board said pharmacists' licenses would be revoked if prices were posted in stores, claiming such a move constituted advertising.

Osco contended the lists were a public service.

Osco's suit also charged that four of the seven members of the pharmacy board were members of the pharmaceutical association, creating what they said was a conflict of interest. An IPA official said all seven members of the board belonged to IPA, including a representative of Osco.

Barrett also denied a motion by Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott to have the matter sent back to the pharmacy board for a hearing.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A popular although dying myth about the securities salesman is that he is at least middle-aged, matured by experience and infused with the wisdom that only years can provide.

Now a survey by the New York Stock Exchange destroys what is left of the myth. It shows that salesmen peak between the ages of 31 and 35, generally after only nine years' experience. After that it's a to-boggon slide.

Many investors will say that the statistics merely confirm what they already knew. The gunslings, the glamour boys of the spectacular and speculative 1960s were mainly young men, they say, and to a great extent this is true.

Nevertheless, neither Wall Street nor any other money institution likes to promote the image of untested youth. Youth is frivolous, age is responsible. Youth is sincere but it is wisdom that wins in the money game.

The study involved a sampling from the 50,950 registered representatives approved by the NYSE to sell securities. Only those who sell at the retail level were measured; institutional salesmen were excluded.

Median gross production, or income earned for the firm, was $35,200 for salesmen in the age 22 to 26 category. It rose to $44,600 among salesmen aged 27 to 30 and reached a high of $71,100 between ages 31 and 35.

After that the slide was swift. From ages 36 to 39, median production was $52,100, falling to $51,600 in the 40 to 49 category, and to $39,200 in the 50 and over grouping.

While methods of paying commissions vary from one firm to another, the net income to the salesman who grosses $50,000 might be about $15,000 or so. And to earn this he might have to sell $5 million of listed stocks.

The researchers declined to offer any official explanation for the early peaking, but did offer a few suggestions, the most interesting being that by the late '30s many brokers are less hungry, more content and tend to coast.

Another suggestion is that middle-aged men often embark on second careers as securities salesmen. Having succeeded in earlier endeavors, and having established themselves financially, they seek the excitement, respectability and freedom of the securities business. And they, too, coast.

The role of this latter factor is likely to diminish in years to come as the comfortable, club-like atmosphere becomes a thing of the past. Brokerage houses are tightening their hiring practices and seeking greater production.

And that leaves little room for the man of wisdom who years earlier learned that there's more to life than money.

When To Sell Stock?

By CARLTON SMITH

There's a wry formula often heard on Wall Street, for sure profits in the market: "Buy low, sell high."

It's offered as tongue-in-cheek wisdom because no one knows, of course—not the best of the professionals—how far down "low" is, or how far up "high" is. But behind the wryness is a message for the individual, amateur investor.

There is, indeed, a time to buy and a time to sell, and the successful investor is simply one who knows the rules of the market well enough to buy what's reasonably priced, and get rid of the stock that doesn't have a good future.

Too many amateur investors believe you can buy a chunk of high-quality stock and "put it away and forget it." Thousands of investors who've accepted that bit of lore over the past years would be ahead if they'd kept their money in a savings account.

Every stock, blue chip and all, is going to have its ups and downs. The investor who hangs on blindly has only sheer luck to thank if he fares well.

And there's the rub. "Giving advice on what stocks to sell, and when, is substantially more difficult than giving advice on purchases," says Marilyn V. Brown, a Burnham & Company analyst.

It's easier—for an analyst, that is—to spot the "buys" than to foresee the decliners. The competent professional who makes a business of studying and interpreting economic data, market trends and industry figures will identify supply-and-demand situations which mean that a given industry is almost certain to have a good year coming up. Seek out the companies in the strongest competitive positions in that industry, and you have "buy" recommendations.

"It is much more unusual when a stock or group of stocks appears clearly overpriced," says the Burnham & Company analyst. Occasionally, bad news about developments in a particular company will come to an analyst's attention, and the brokerage firm can advise clients to unload. But in most cases the decision can't be that clear cut.

"A sell decision much more often will be conditioned by the individual investor's own requirements," says Mr. Brown. You've bought a stock for its dividends, and now it's priced at a low-yield level, for example. To you that may say "sell"; to someone else, it might not. For a variety of reasons, the right time to sell can be affected both by the outlook for the stock itself, and by the individual's own investment strategy.

Thus the investor is much more likely to go wrong on the "sell" end of his investment. He can be wrong either by holding a stock when he should have sold, or by selling when he should have hung on. Yet—if his original thesis is correct—the successful investor must take into account the truism that there is a time to buy, and a time to sell.

If you don't have that much market know-how, you'll find yourself in over your head, trying to play in that league.

Unless you have sufficient capital to command the interest and attentions of a good broker—and few of them have any time for the little guy these days—better let a mutual fund manager make the decisions.

GRAIN FUTURES SHARPLY HIGHER

CHICAGO (AP) — A strong speculative demand sent major commodity futures prices sharply higher on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday.

Within minutes after the opening, new crop soybeans advanced 4 1/2 cents, wheat was up 1 1/2 cents; corn and oats 1 cent, soybean meal $1 a ton and soybean oil some 10 points.

Iced broilers were little changed and trade was dull. The strong demand for soybean and meal futures appeared to have been linked to persistent trade reports that cash prices of the two commodities would continue to move higher this year because of world demand.

Soybean oil, however, currently is a glut on Holder's hands and does not share in the optimistic tone concerning meal and beans.

In the last few days, deferred, or new crop, options have not been as strong as nearby. Buyers actively sought meal and beans in deferred months and as prices pushed upward much short-covering was noted.

Early gains in wheat, corn and oats ranged from 1/4 to 1/2 cent. As prices in the soybean complex began to pull ahead, new buying and short-covering developed in the grain pits.

This, despite the expanded winter wheat harvest and generally favorable weather for growth of the new crops. These factors are normally bearish.

After about an hour, soybeans were 1 1/2 to 3 1/2 cents a bushel higher, July 3.53 1/2; wheat was 1/2 to 3/4 higher, July 1.43 1/2; corn was 1/4 to 1/2 higher, July 1.24 1/2 and oats were 1/4 to 1 cent higher, July 98 1/2 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) —

George McGovern's victory in the California Democratic presidential primary was cited by Wall Street analysts as one of the main reasons for the stock market's sharp drop Wednesday.

The victory of the South Dakota senator in the winner-take-all primary meant that McGovern had to be taken seriously as a contender for the Democratic nomination and as a possible winner in the general elections in November, the analysts said. Many investors are wary of the senator's economic proposals, they said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials finished off 7.38 at 944.08. Declines on the New York Stock Exchange led advances by more than 2 to 1.

Big Board volume eased to 15.23 million from 15.98 million Tuesday. On the American Stock Exchange, turnover dropped to 3.99 million shares from 5.01 million Tuesday.

The losers included motors, rubber issues, farm implements, aircrafts, electronics and oils. Airlines, which had declined in recent sessions, and tobaccos were mixed.

Profit taking, credited by analysts with weighing heavily on the market in the previous two sessions, was again a depressant Wednesday, they said.

The most-active Big Board issue was Levitz Furniture, off 6 1/4 at 41 1/4 on a volume of 489,400 shares. A 130,000-share block of the issue traded at 41 1/4.

Levitz announced Tuesday the resignation of its president Leon J. Levitz. Last week the Securities and Exchange Commission accused the company of violating securities laws in a registration statement for 600,000 additional shares.

Of the 1,751 issues traded on the Big Board, 949 declined, and 427 advanced. New yearly lows were reached by 120 issues and highs by 22.

Of the 1,194 issues traded on the American Stock Exchange, 603 declined, and 287 advanced.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks fell 0.31 to 59.81. The American Stock Exchange index declined .09 to 27.56.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was off 2.0 at 327.7. Industrials were off 3.5, rails were off 1.0, and utilities were off .4.

The number of blocks of 10,000 shares or more traded on the Big Board dropped to 106 from a revised total of 120 Tuesday.

The largest block was 268,700 shares of Ogden Corp., which traded at 13 1/2, off 3/4.

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The long-stalled nomination of Richard G. Kleindienst to be attorney general will be voted on by the Senate Thursday afternoon. Senate leaders of both parties have forecast Kleindienst's confirmation. Liberal Democrats spearheading the opposition are not contesting the chances for confirmation.

President Nixon nominated Kleindienst in mid-February to succeed John N. Mitchell as attorney general when Mitchell resigned to direct Nixon's reelection campaign. Kleindienst had served as deputy attorney general.

Action on Kleindienst's nomination has been delayed by an investigation of the Justice Department's out-of-court settlement of three antitrust cases against International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

FARENTHOLD

STEPSON CLUBBED, THROWN TO DEATH

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI) — The millionaire stepson of Frances Farenthold, who lost the Democratic nomination for Texas governor four days ago in a runoff election, was clubbed unconscious and thrown to his death in the Gulf of Mexico with a concrete anchor attached to his neck, a medical examiner said Wednesday.

The body of Randy Farenthold, 32, wrapped in chains tied to concrete blocks, washed into the shallows off Port Aransas, Tex., Tuesday.

Police said Farenthold, made wealthy by an inheritance from his grandmother, was known to have been "hanging around" with underworld characters. Officers called the murder a "gangland slaying."

The victim's stepmother was defeated Saturday in a Democratic primary runoff election for governor by Dolph Briscoe, a wealthy rancher.

Dr. Joseph Rupp, the Nueces County medical examiner, pronounced the case a homicide after an autopsy.

He said Farenthold had been hit on the head with a "blunt instrument." Rupp did not say Farenthold drowned, but his statement that Farenthold was thrown unconscious into the water left that implication.

CUBAN JOURNALISTS

BEAT AP NEWSMEN

WARSAW (AP) — Two Associated Press correspondents, Nicholas Lillitos and George Brodski, were beaten up in their office Wednesday by four men identifying themselves as Cuban journalists.

A spokesman for the four, all of them with Latin features, asked: "Which one of you is Nicholas Lillitos?"

After identifying himself, Lillitos then heard the spokesman complain in English that the correspondent had been writing a "lot of untruths" about Fidel Castro.

The man said his party were Cuban newsmen accompanying Castro on his Polish visit.

A few minutes later, one burly man, dressed in a short-sleeved shirt, grabbed Lillitos by the tie and punched him.

The other three then punched and kicked both him and his colleague, Brodski.

All the time they were shouting something in Spanish. The scuffle lasted about 10 minutes.

Brodski suffered back injuries which required medical attention. Lillitos suffered a slight swelling above his right eye but otherwise was unhurt.

The AP bureau in Warsaw had reported Tuesday night, on the basis of information from a government source, that Castro was suffering from heart trouble, Castro asserted Wednesday, according to a government official, that his heart was "like steel," but his schedule was curtailed.

The Polish Foreign Ministry was informed of the attack and an oral complaint was made there by the AP bureau.

Job No Trouble

Editor's Note — One alternative is five years in the clink and a $10,000 fine. Another is helping keep America the beautiful. Here's one project that conscientious objectors don't seem to object to.

By DAVID AMMONS
Associated Press Writer

POINT PARTRIDGE, Wash. (AP) — Quietly his screaming chainsaw, Steve Pettit tugged at his beard and reflected "this job is a gold mine for me—I don't feel trapped."

For Pettit and nine other youths who carve camp sites and trails out of heavily wooded state land on Whidbey Island, the conservation and recreation corps is an experiment that offers them an alternative to military service.

All 10 are conscientious objectors. The experimental group, commonly known as the Ecology Corps, is being cosponsored by the Washington Department of Natural Resources and the Selective Service System. Only California has a similar "alternative service." Since the program began several months ago, the men have spent all of their working hours on the scenic island site, clearing heavy underbrush, carving out nine campsites and an observation area with an expansive view of Admiralty Inlet and building a carefully graded trail down the cliffside to the beach.

The trail opens six miles of deserted state beachland to the public. The recreation area is located about four miles west of the picturesque village of Coupeville.

"This is quite a pleasant alternative to five years in jail or a $10,000 fine," said Pettit, 23, of Bellevue, Wash., referring to the penalties for refusing service to the country. "I've always enjoyed working in the woods, and this is a worthwhile experience for me. But a guy would have to want to do what we are doing, or he'd be miserable."

Pettit is foreman of the crew. He assigns specific tasks at the beginning of a day and oversees that he gets into the work. All funding comes from the Department of Natural Resources. Working hours are from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. The men are free to leave camp evenings and weekends.

Praise already is being lavished on the program by draft officials, including national director Curtis Tarr, who recently visited the site.

Prickly Problem

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Seattle still has a lot of weird ordinances on its books. Like, for instance, one which calls for 90 days in the clink for anyone who lets a thistle grow on his land.

If this statute were enforced, matters could get pretty prickly because a lot of downy-headed carduus, cirsium and onopordion plants grow on state highway department median strips. Furthermore, the chief of police could get 90 days in his own jail if he failed to publish each day a notice to taxpayers that Seattle thistles must be destroyed.

Does a conscientious objector have a service obligation to his country. "If I could create a good family, if I could be true to myself, then I think I would be doing the country the greatest of services," Leonard said.

"We're somehow being exploited," said Jim Crawford, a 22-year-old Tacoma, Wash., native. "The work we're doing is legitimate, but we really didn't have much choice. Alternative service jobs are scarce and we didn't have many options."

All agreed they enjoy freedom from the regimentation that marks military life, but some said they should be paid military wages. The men live in a barracks on nearby Camp

No eating gap
NEW YORK (UPI)—Some of today's college students may be "turned off" by the Establishment but it hasn't affected their appetites, according to a survey by a firm that provides cafeteria, fast food and vending machine service at about 75 major colleges and universities.

In a regular 33-week school year, says Servomation Corporation, the average student consumes: 125 pounds of potatoes; 150 pounds of other vegetables; 12 pounds of hot dogs; 50 pounds of hamburger; 132 pounds of other meats; 500 assorted sandwiches; 650 pieces of pie, cake and pastry; 100 bags of potato chips and other snacks; 125 gallons of milk; 12 gallons of ice cream, 1,000 cokes and other soft drinks and more than 200 cups of coffee. And that's only on campus!

He had not truck
With 'No Flowers'
ESSEX JUNCTION (UPI) — "It made my father madder than hell every time there was an obit in the paper mentioning 'in lieu of flowers,'" says the son of Milo C. Reynolds.

So, after Reynolds died earlier this year at the age of 100, the family ran this ad in the Burlington, Vt., Free Press: "July 16, 1871-February 23, 1972. Milo C. Reynolds. In lieu of charity it is suggested that friends and enemies send flowers."

Smoking more.
Consuming less
LONDON (UPI)—The British are smoking more cigarettes but less tobacco. The reason: cigarettes are getting smaller.

Britons smoked 128 billion cigarettes in 1970, the latest year for which figures are available, up 3 billion from 1969. But the amount of cigarette tobacco consumed dropped from 221 million pounds in 1969 to 215.4 million pounds in 1970.

For Teachers; Tie Keeps Woodson 'In'

The Board of Education of School District 117 Tuesday evening reconsidered and approved a negotiated teacher pay boost raising the beginning salary from $7,600 to $7,900.

Estimated cost of the proposed package agreement was pegged at $185,000 for the 1972-73 school year.

The same package was approved in part at the last meeting but the economic items were not included. Jack Fairfield, chief negotiator for the board, said he would re-submit the proposal for the entire approval of the board and urged members to accept the proposal.

The measure was recorded in the minutes as an unanimous ballot although Colclasure and Morris voted to "pass."

Colclasure said earlier that if it was the feeling of the board that acceptance would violate "good faith bargaining" he would not oppose the matter. He did make it clear that future negotiations would require additional faculty loads and a reduction in number of teachers as a matter of economics, coupled with the fact that the enrollment was less.

Woodson School Still "In"

A "tie" vote which resulted in "no action" kept the Woodson school in the district for a time. Dr. Clifford Crone, superintendent, explained some of the educational and economic factors used to support his recommendation to the board that the Woodson school be phased out when the new addition is completed at Murrayville. He cited about $5,600 annually in operation costs which would be saved plus the cost of bringing the building up to life safety code and educational requirements he deemed necessary for continued use. He said only 18 of the 90 students lived close enough to walk to school. The rest are riding buses at the present time and could be taken the additional five miles without difficulty, he contended.

Don Colclasure said he felt the additional new building "starts" would equal those of

Illinois Unit Districts Form Association

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — An association of 165 Illinois unit school districts was established Wednesday to defend the districts in a suit concerning state school financing.

Unit districts are those with combined grade and high schools. In dual districts the two systems are separate.

The suit was filed in Circuit Court in Waukegan by the Highland Park-Deerfield High School District, charging that the present state aid formula is discriminatory because it gives unit districts more money per pupil than dual districts.

Dr. George B. Smittle of Waukegan, president, said the association also will "work to find an equitable and fair financing arrangement" for Illinois schools.

Other officers elected Wednesday were Claude Norcross of Peoria, vice president, and John Lowey of Arcola, secretary-treasurer.

Bakalis Aid Increase Fails Illinois Senate

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Illinois Senate Democrats failed Wednesday to pass State School Supt. Michael Bakalis' proposal to increase state aid to common schools by $128 million.

Republicans abstained or voted no, saying a $90 million increase proposed by Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie was all the state could afford.

One Democrat suggested a state lottery might help fund the boost.

The House-passed lottery bill is scheduled for a Senate Revenue Committee hearing Thursday.

Sen. Thomas Hynes, D-Chicago, the Senate sponsor, kept the Bakalis proposal alive for another try.

Sen. Cecil A. Partee, D-Chicago, the president pro tempore, said Republicans had their priorities wrong and threatened to cut Ogilvie appropriations proposed for other programs he said were designed to create jobs.

But Sen. Hudson Sours, R-Peoria, said the one alternative is to increase the income tax, "and I've heard very few who would support raising the income tax."

And Sen. Jack Kneupper, R-Elmhurst, said another alternative would be to cut one other massive spending program, listing mental health public aid, roads, and higher education as possibilities.

"The minute we take money from these programs, your side would say we had our priorities wrong," Kneupper said. "We all know this is meaningless jargon unless you are willing to take from one of the four."

However, Sen. Robert J. Egan, D-Chicago, said he was alarmed because "the excuse we don't have the money is gaining momentum," and suggested reliance on a state lottery.

"We've got a lottery bill that is estimated to raise $100 million a year," he said.

"Take a little more sensible attitude on the lottery bill," he said to Republicans, although some Democrats also oppose it. "Then we'll have no trouble in passing the school aid bill."

The total of the appropriation for Bakalis' program of state aid for 1973 is $911 million for common schools, while the Ogilvie total is $788 million.

Hynes said there was little change in the formula for distributing aid as proposed by Bakalis. One change would allow schools to choose between using a current weighting factor for density of population in a district and a new factor to reflect the number of pupils in the district from poor families.

Another change would give a weighting advantage to dual districts with more than 100 pupils in average daily attendance, to narrow the disparity in state aid received by dual and unit districts. Dual district spokesmen have said the advantage amounts to as much as $100 a pupil under present formulas.

On Election Code To Set City Balloting

Circuit Judge Paul Verticchio Wednesday morning allowed a petition calling for a municipal election on the proposition "shall the City of Jacksonville adopt the managerial form of municipal government."

Members of a citizens committee sponsoring the proposition to change to managerial form stipulated that "in excess of 1,000" names had been secured on the 67 petitions on file and that according to a certificate from City Clerk Pauline Newport 5,820 votes were cast in the last city election for the office of mayor.

The law requires ten per cent of the vote total to call for an election. That total would be 582.

Attorney Walter R. Bellatti represented the citizens committee in court and the City of Jacksonville was represented by City Attorney Bill Colburn.

Colburn announced that the city would have no legal objection to the petitions.

Date Uncertain

Judge Paul Verticchio then entertained arguments from Attorneys Bellatti and Colburn on the question of a suitable date for the proposed referendum.

Bellatti asked that the election be set Oct. 3. He cited as his reasons for the request as he felt the expense of the election would be "minimal" for the benefit received. He said there would be bound to be some partisan feelings in a general election, especially one which included a presidential race. He further stated that because of the large volume of publicity for general election candidates it would be difficult to "fully inform" the citizens of Jacksonville concerning the merits of the proposition. He also stated that the city represented a 3 1/2 million operation and that the additional expense for the special election would only be something over $2,000.

City Has No Objection

Attorney Colburn explained that he had no legal objection to the election on behalf of the city but urged the court to consider setting the referendum at the same time as the general election to "minimize the expense to the city." Colburn said he felt the one-shot election would not be a burden.

Bellatti said additional reasons for asking the Oct. 3 election date was that it would give prospective candidates, in the event of favorable action, "adequate time to consider running for the positions available."

Judge Verticchio said a revision in the election code now under consideration by the Legislature should be final within a week or so and if the present proposal were passed it might affect the validity of the special date, or at least give rise to some question.

Changes in the proposed election code would set two days a year for elections and all propositions would be required to be placed on the ballot at the same time.

Decision June 21

Judge Verticchio said he would issue a written order June 21 for the setting of the election. He indicated that if the election reform were passed by the General Assembly he would examine the proposals and language of the bill, and if the election bill did not pass, he would have no objection to setting the Oct. 3 date.

Those present at the hearing were: representing the City, Alderman Don Votsmier, City Clerk Pauline Newport and Attorney Bill Colburn. Neither Mrs. Newport nor Mr. Votsmier expressed objections. Those representing the citizens group were: Attorney Walter R. Bellatti, Lee Roy Jackson, Jr., who testified concerning the number of signatures on the petitions, and Mrs. George Zeigler.
